WIFE-KILLER AGAIN ASKS PARDON

Dr. Amesbury, Kin of Sir Walter Raleigh, Makes New Appeal to Governor

Dr. Walter Raleigh Amesbury, direct descendant of Sir Walter Raleigh, settler of Virginia and favorite of Queen Elizabeth, who was sentenced to life imprisonment in 1908 for the murder of his wife at Hyde Park, Christmas Day, 1907, today petitioned Governor Cox for a pardon.

Just a year ago Dr. Amesbury petitioned for a pardon, but it was denied after his son, Walter Raleigh Amesbury, Jr., appeared in opposition.

At that time it appeared that Dr. Amesbury would succeed to an English baronetcy and a fortune if released. Subsequent developments showed

POLICE TELL OF PINK PAJAMA DANCES OF THE SEVEN ARTS

The thick red curtains that shielded the worshippers of the Seven Arts from the curious public failed to protect them today, for the mysteries of the Seven Arts Club were bared in Municipal Court when Nan Mahoney and Hilton Smith, the founders, were tried before Judge Murray on charges of maintaining a disorderly house and illegally selling liquor.

The description of Bohemia at fairs at the Seven Arts rendezvous at No. 50 Revere street recalled the case of the Lighted Lamp, which was put out by the police.

Sergeant Will Livingstone described the finding of Miss Mahoney in "pale pink silk pajamas, smoking a cigarette," when he went to have the red curtains drawn back.

There was a stir in the packed court chamber when the sergeant, blushing like a schoolboy, described how he had found a titian-haired girl, bare-footed and partly disrobed, doing "some sort of a Bohemian fandango," when he visited the

FOIL BREAK AT STATE PRISON

Eugene La Plante, a prisoner at Charlestown State Prison, serving a twelve to fifteen year sentence, attempted to escape today by hiding under a barn in the yard.

After an hour's search Warden Hendry and deputy wardens found the prisoner, who was placed in solitary confinement.

La Plante was sentenced from Northampton for attacking a girl. He has served one year. He has been employed as a fireman in the engineering plant.

While at work today he disappeared. His absence was not noticed by engineer Chapman for about ten minutes. The man was found by Deputy Warden James L. Hogsett. Broken cobwebs revealed La Plante's refuge.

ARMED MAN SEIZES 2 SISTERS

One Attack Follows the Other in West Roxbury by "Bulging Eye" Assailant

"The man with the bulging eyes" has appeared once more in the vicinity of Bellevue Tower, West Roxbury. This time Leola Kippenberger of No. 388 Park street, West Roxbury, is his victim.

Five times in the past two years the "man with the bulging eyes" has thrown the district into terror. His attack on the sixteen-year-old High School girl has aroused the neighborhood to a high pitch and threats of dire vengeance were freely made today.

The girl was attacked by the stranger as she was returning from school, while she was taking a short cut from Washington street to her home. Only a few minutes prior to the attack the man had followed Leola's young sister, Dorothy, on Park street from the opposite direction from the tower. The girl, although badly frightened, did not

GIRL SLAIN BY ESKIMO 'FISH FANGS'

Finding of Miss Lindsay's Body Reveals Year-Old Tragedy in Labrador

Curling, N. F., June 13.—Finding of the body of Miss Marguerite Lindsay in the woods near Cartwright Harbor, Lab., has only deepened the mystery of the death, nearly a year ago of the society girl acting as a volunteer teacher in the Grenfel Labrador Missions.

That she was the victim of a band of murderous "Fish Fang" Eskimos is now a more plausible solution than it seemed last Fall, when it was thought possible that she might have drowned.

Veteran missionaries familiar with the native languages and trappers and friendly Eskimos are endeavoring to clear up the mystery and the Newfoundland government is showing active interest. If it is found that the "Fish Fangs" murdered her, an expedition will probably be sent to Labrador to arrest the guilty Eskimos.

London, June 13. (I.N.S.)—President Li Yuan-Hung of China has fled from Peking in consequence of threats by his political enemies that troops would be employed unless he vacated office at once, said a News Agency dispatch from Peking today.

Shanghai, June 13 (AP).—Conditions in China were termed "the worst since the Boxer outbreak," in a statement today in which the American Association of China and the American Chamber of Commerce of Shanghai united.

The organizations agreed that "American lives and liberty are endangered and their prestige and business are being destroyed by lack of strong action." A cable of protest was sent to the Secretary of State in Washington.

It was charged that the Chinese

Acree Stirs Wrath of Delegates by Racial and Religious Propaganda

Angus Acree, the man who tried to capture the eighteenth convention of the National League of Masonic Clubs for the Ku Klux Klan, has been run out of Boston.

Rising in their wrath at the bold attempt to stir up religious and racial hatred, the Masons made Boston too hot for the sponsor of Klanism.

Attempts to learn where Acree, editor of a Klan paper and superpropagandist, had disappeared failed and questions directed to Masonic leaders brought forth nothing more than smiles.

CALLED MEETING "FIZZLE."

Acree vanished as if into thin air. His disappearance is all the more remarkable because of the bitter denunciation he made of the convention just prior to his disappearance.

RATHER LOW CUT.

Attorney Peter Borre, defending Miss Mahoney and her poetic companion, who claims to write "things," asked: "Sergeant, would you say that young lady was unclad?"

"Well, not exactly unclad, I do not know just how you would describe it, but that robe she wore was cut low, very low."

Attorney Borre: "Was her dress unusual for a tea room?"

"I am not a frequenter of these Bohemian tea rooms so I really do not know how they do dress, nor do I know just what their illumination is supposed to be. I didn't think that dress exactly proper."

The sergeant didn't object to the dancer being barefooted, although he did think it would have been better for her foot had she worn slippers.

The sergeant's detailed account of finding Miss Mahoney languidly puffing a gold-tipped cigarette while she wore the pink silk pajamas was eagerly followed by the spectators, who made such a stir to catch every word of this testimony that Court Officer Peter Hanley called "Order."

"I went there to ask Miss Mahoney to draw those red curtains aside," the sergeant began. "You see, your honor, those curtains made it impossible to tell what was going on from the street and we had had many reports.

SURE PAJAMAS WERE PINK.

"I found Miss Mahoney in pajamas. They were rather tight. She was smoking a cigarette. I told her what I had to say and went out."

Attorney Borre: "What kind of pajamas were they? Were they silk?"

"They were silk. They were pale pink.

Captain James McDeavitt of Joy street station caused some surprise when he said he had been present at the raid on June 2 when women scrambled out of back windows in an attempt to escape.

"When I went in with the raiding party I found one girl sitting in a man's lap," he told the judge. "I found one girl fifteen years of age. I found another girl of nineteen whose uncle had asked me to locate her and keep her from these tea rooms."

REALLY WASN'T PROPER.

"We found some persons under the influence of liquor. We found a quart of benedictine, a pint of gin and one gill of moonshine whiskey. This was in the oven of the stove."

Patrolman John J. Clifford, Jr., testified that on April 20 he had been in the place, then The Brown Jug, when four drunken men entered. One, he said, pulled Miss Mahoney to his lap, whereupon she said, "Do you think that a nice thing to do before strangers?"

GIRL VICTIM IN DANGER.

Miss Evelyn Spinney, the Lynn High School student, shot by "Lightning Jack," is in imminent danger of death.

Physicians fear blood poisoning may set in, and are making every effort to keep streptococcus infection from the wound.

Chief Hayes is today at the bedside of his son, Donald, five years old, who was badly injured in a fall from a milk wagon. The wheels of the wagon passed over the boy's body, and an operation may be necessary. Hayes exonerated the driver from blame.

PLAYS ALDERMEN.

"After the weak-kneed Beverly board of aldermen gave this man Hayes a white-wash at its meeting Monday night, I have come to the conclusion that they are endeavoring to put something over on the public," the mayor declared. "They may pull the wool over the eyes of the people of Beverly, but not for a second will they fool the people of Lynn.

"I intend to see while I am mayor that the people of Lynn are protected. They were not protected in this case, and neved will be while this bad man is at large."

WINSTON CRIPPLED.

John F. Winston, Lynn High School student who was wounded in the knee by the same bullet which may cost Miss Spinney her life, will be crippled for life, it is said.

New York, June 13.—Shortening of the right leg by an inch and a half as the result of an auto accident won twelve-year-old Irving Weiner of No. 1767 Richmond Terrace, Port Richmond, S. I., a verdict for $35,000, or a little more than $23,000 an inch.

The verdict was returned by a jury against Samuel Molinoff, hardware merchant at No. 1944 Richmond Terrace, Port Richmond.

The boy was run down near his home by a motor truck. His skull was fractured, his left arm broken and his right thigh splintered. The injured arm is partly paralyzed.

the title lapsed and the fortune went elsewhere.

Dr. Amesbury was born in England sixty-four years ago. After a career of adventure in India, he came to America and married Anna Vatier Edwards, a Kentucky beauty of great musical ability. Two sons were born to them, Walter and Ira, who are now thirty-six and thirty-three, respectively.

For years he practiced in Duxbury; then sold his practice and went to Texas on account of his wife's health. The Texas venture proved unsuccessful and they returned to Hyde Park.

Once back here, they became estranged, because of unreasoning jealousy of the husband, it is alleged. Dr. Amesbury went to Milford and the family remained in Hyde Park.

Christmas morning, 1907, he appeared before his family to arrange a reconciliation. During his visit a quarrel arose resulting in the murder. An elder son crashed a milk bottle over his father's head, but too late to prevent the fatal shot.

Dr. Amesbury pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree, confessing love for his wife's memory and contrition for his act.

HAUNTED BY EYES.

The description of the man, as given by the girl is: 35 years old, hair tinged with gray; gray suit, dark cap and smooth face. His outstanding characteristic is the bulging eyes.

"Those eyes will haunt me to my grave," Leola declared to her mother.

Two years ago a man with bulging eyes made advances to a married woman on Park street, near the tower. Then, after a lapse of a few months, a man of the same description accosted a young girl near where Leola was stopped. Later he followed a girl for several hundred yards along Park street until she ran into her home.

POLICE WORK ON CLEW.

Leola is still under care of a doctor at her home. The sight of the gun that the man held to her breast while he tried to subdue the girl threw her into hysterics from which she did not recover for several hours.

Police and citizens have scoured the vicinity of Bellevue tower, armed with guns and clubs, but no sight of the man has been found.

Captain Bowley of Station 17 said today that he believes the man to be a local resident and it was intimated that the police have an idea as to his identity.

wright Mission, who accompanied the body to this port on the Steamer Sagona, intimates that the young woman was murdered. He has with him a written report of his investigations up to the time of leaving Cartwright which he will tender to the Department of Justice at St. John's.

Miss Lindsay was popular in Boston, London and Montreal society. She attended school near Boston and was a member of the Sewing Circle and Vincent Club in 1918. Later she attended St. Andrew's College in England. Her parents are wealthy and live in Montreal, where her body will be sent for burial.

Miss Lindsay was last seen by Miss Annette Styles, a Vassar graduate, who was also a volunteer teacher, on August 4, 1922, when she started out for a walk. Miss Styles protested that she ought not to go out alone, but her protest went unheeded.

When night came and the young woman had not returned a searching party was organized to hunt for her. Day after day the search went on, but no trace of the missing girl could be found. Friendly tribes, trappers, fisher folk and missionaries scoured the bleak Labrador wilds, but in vain.

How her body was found as soon as the snow had melted this Spring, what marks were on it, if any; who found it and where, are matters dealt with in Dr. Sellers' report to the Newfoundland authorities. He refuses to disclose his facts to the public, but intimates that she met with foul play.

Sane, Hospitable Jealousy Is Cruel Wealth Goes to Waste Edison's Son

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

WASHINGTON predicts that President Harding will use his influence with Congress and let the crews of foreign ships get their wine or beer in American ports. That would seem sane, hospitable and courteous if it could be arranged legally.

We don't like wine officially—Frenchmen do. They don't like ice water—we drink it. What should we say if the French refused to allow any ice water on American ships in French ports. Or if, as is probable, England should say that no ship may come inside her three-mile limit unless it brings a certain amount of liquor on board?

We should be able to settle our family affairs, including prohibition, without dragging in the outside world.

"JEALOUST is cruel as the grave; the coals thereof are coals of fire."

Lazardo, undersized Filipino, found it so. When a policeman saw him staggering toward the water front, Lazardo, weight 120 pounds, was carrying the 140-pound body of Miss Blossom Martin, a white girl, whom he had just killed. She liked somebody else better. After confessing the murder, Lazardo bit the hand of a detective that tried to put irons on him. That's temperament.

Next to that you read of a Filipino chauffeur in Youngstown, Ohio, confessing that he killed Miss Drachmann, a young Danish girl. Jealousy again.

White women will find it safer to confine their acquaintance to white young men.

Asia and America don't mix well.

MAN, having harnessed Niagara and other waterfalls, thinks he has done a great deal.

But the power wealth of the nation has been barely touched. An expert shows that in the Niagara and St. Lawrence rivers nine million horsepower goes to waste. Molecules of water knocking against each other, rushing from the lakes to the sea, raise the temperature of the water. That's all the good the power does. There is a waste of seventy-nine billion horsepower hours each year.

To harness that would be equal to saving one hundred and fifty-eight million tons of coal each year.

THOMAS A. EDISON was at Cambridge yesterday to see his son receive a degree from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The son is a trained physicist and mathematician and his father is going to give him a job without the usual examination to which he submits college graduates—of whom he thinks little.

What will Edison's son accomplish with his complete education, compared with what Edison, the father, did with the simplest public school education?

The lash of necessity is often a better driver than an education.

MR. KRACKE, United States appraiser in New York, says this country will buy from Europe three thousand million dollars' worth of goods, raw and finished, this year, and collect five hundred and fifty millions in customs.

When the tariff bill passed you were told it would keep Europe from selling us goods; therefore, poor Europe couldn't pay us what she owes. But the tariff bill is passed and Europe is getting three billions from us this year for her goods, a good deal more than we are getting from the rest of the world for what we export.

AMERICAN TRAVELERS in France will spend fifty millions this year. That is the right way to send money to Europe—we get something for it. The American traveler brings back information.

For instance, when they notice a drunken man or woman in Paris and investigate, they find that the drunken person is never French; always another nationality, usually American or English. That's worth learning or thinking about. No Frenchman drinks ice water and none drinks whiskey. That's one reason.

3 BEAUTIES IN DRAYTON SUIT FOR DIVORCE

MRS. WILLIAM ASTOR DRAYTON
Wife of grandson of late William Astor, who is suing her for divorce.

New York, June 12.—William Astor Drayton, grandson of the late William Astor, has sued for divorce, it was disclosed today. Action is now pending in Westchester County.

The action, instituted at White Plains, remained unsuspected by the public for a year. Mrs. Drayton has filed three amended answers, each time incorporating fresh allegations. Testimony has been taken in England and in France.

In his complaint, Mr. Drayton accused his wife of statutory offenses in England and Paris, and in her amended answers Mrs. Drayton charged that he had been unfaithful in 1920, in Paris, with three beauties known as "Marguerite Florent," a Hall woman, and a small one who passed as "La Xaronne."

EX-ARMY MAN A SPY

In addition Mrs. Drayton charged her husband with misconduct with a Mrs. Catherine Harold Sands in London, and further alleged that durnig May, 1920, he had been in Milan with an Italian companion.

Mrs. Drayton also alleged that an ex-British service man named Dudley had been employed to "spy" on her at Eastbourne, England, in an effort to obtain material for a divorce action, but that he had failed to find anything.

Mrs. Drayton then charged that Dudley launched his campaign, enlisting a woman friend and a man known as John Devivier in the cause. This group finally went to Paris. Mrs. Drayton alleging that the expenses was paid by her husband.

BEAT HER WITH CANE.

She also charged that her husband had been cruel and inhuman, citing a tour of Paris by night with him as an example.

Mrs. Drayton further charged that one afternoon in Paris while she and Mr. Drayton were walking along a street he had struck her with his hand and then applied his cane.

Mrs. Drayton asks the custody of their two children, John Drayton, who is 18 years old, and Margaret Livingston Drayton, a year younger.

The Draytons were married on November 8, 1912. Mrs. Drayton was Miss Helen Fargo Squires, the daughter of the late Herbert G. Squires, at one time United States minister to Panama and to Cuba.

With Partner McGee, Broker Is Remanded for Sentence Friday

New York, June 13—Edward M. Fuller and W. Frank McGee, stock brokers who starred in New York's most sensational bucket shop case, today pleaded guilty to the charge of bucketing an order from Franklin L. Link of Westmoreland, Tenn., and were remanded to sentence Friday.

The brokers, members of the firm of E. M. Fuller & Co., failed several months ago for upward of $800,000.

They were committed to jail for contempt after they failed to produce papers which had been ordered by the Supreme Court of the United States to be turned over to the trustee in bankruptcy.

Two disagreements and a mistrial resulted after the pair were indicted. The fourth trial was to have start ed Monday, and postponement came on two rumors that the brokers intended to change their pleas.

Edward McManus is now under indictment, charged with being sought to bribe a juryman is one of the three trials.

The brokers said they had decided to throw themselves on the mercy of the court, against the advice of their lawyers.

"There was a rumor current in criminal courts building that the pair had decided to be "good fellows" and save the names of influential friends whose names had entered the cases.

"We are penniless," said McGee. "We could not fight any more. The cleverness of the district attorney and his tenacity was too much for us. I guess we will get a tough bit but we will have to grin and bear it."

First of 357,803 Immigrants Due to Reach Ellis Island by July 1

New York, June 13 (I.N.S.)—Twenty-two starters today toed the mark in what is expected to be the greatest race in world history.

They are the twenty-two foreign liners which on July 1, the day of the government's fiscal year, are scheduled to arrive at Ellis Island, melting pot of the nation, with the first of the 357,803 immigrants Uncle Sam will accept for adoption during the next twelve months.

"Thousands of passages have already been booked from Liverpool, Queenstown, the ports of France and Spain, and the embarkation points of Asia and Africa," steamship company officials here said today.

GREATEST RUSH EVER.

Ellis Island heads were in a dilemma. "We have but 1500 beds, what will we do with the 10,000 who will arrive July 1?" they asked.

To complicate matters, officials pointed out Henry H. Curran, new Commissioner of Immigration, will be in charge on that date. Robert E. Tod, present commissioner, has resigned effective June 30.

"The rush will be the greatest in the history of the immigration department," Tod said today, giving figures of the influx during the past year.

"It might be supposed that Germany, suffering affrontt effects, would take advantage of America's offer to admit 67,607 of her citizens. Yet Germany sent over but 40,954—26,653 under her quota. Austria, too, fell short, but only by 159.

QUOTAS QUICKLY FILLED.

"On the other hand, England's quota of 77,342 was filled within a few months after the beginning of the year. Italy, too, sent her allotted 42,057 immigrants ever as quickly as possible."

Russia may be the "dead land" claimed by Sir Shackleton.

"But Russia sent the 2,400 immigrants she was permitted once here with all possible speed," Tod said. "Norway has failed to fill her quota of 12,202 by 2,282. France has 1,083 left from its allotment."

BOMBO DANCER ASKS $100,000; JILTED

DORA DUBY, DANCER

New York, June 13.—Dora Duby, well known on Broadway as a former dancer in "Bombo" and "Midnight Rounders," filed suit in the Supreme Court against Harold Grier, of Montreal, for $100,000 for alleged breach on promise.

Miss Duby asserts she and Grier became engaged Jan. 15 last, and since then he has refused to set the date of their marriage.

Grier is described as a wealthy scion of the Dominion Grain Company, Ltd., of Montreal.

BURDETT COLLEGE HOLDS REUNION

A joyous "gang" of 600 loyal rooters from Burdett College are "whooping it up" today at Riverside Recreation Grounds on the occasion of the third annual reunion and "rushing good time" of the well known school of business. A special train carrying the jollymakers left the South station at 9.00.

RUM RUNNERS DUPED BY FAKE

Providence, June 13.—Fake Federal prohibition agents overhauled a liquor running automobile at Hoxsie on West Shore Road, after they fired two warning shots and seized twenty cases of assorted whiskey.

A few moments later a man ostensibly to be a Federal agent walked into the dispatchers of Thomas Riley at Washington school and Warwick avenue, Lakewood, looking another man who he said was his prisoner.

The "Federal agent" went to the store telephone, made a fake call to "Headquarters," and announced that he had "seized 20 cases of liquor." The "agent" and his "prisoner" then walked out and disappeared.

BRONZED LIFE GUARD DIVORCED

Eddie Zimmerman Couldn't Resist Call of the Waves; Joy at the Beach

New York, June 13.—A mile of sand to stick his toes in, of sun to tan his bare shoulders. A mile of giggling nymphs and a mile of waves to make them afraid. A mile of opportunities to dash to the rescue of fair swimmers.

And now and then a cigarette to smoke while gazing on this mile of undisputed kingdom, object before his lonely house and six feet of vanity.

This was the joy of Eddie Zimmerman, this mile at Manhattan Beach and a year ago he traded a bride and $1,000,000 to get it back. Now a Philadelphia court has confirmed the decree, granting a divorce to Mrs. Helen Zimmerman, on the ground of "brutal and barbarous treatment."

ONE REEL AFTER ANOTHER

It's a movie of thrills, this romance of Eddie Zimmerman, lifeguard, and Mrs. Lane, widow of a millionaire publisher. There has been a new reel for each of the last three seasons.

It is the spring of 1921, when the first summer warmth brought droves of the sweltering to Manhattan beach, bathers looked in vain for Eddie's bronze figure and carefree smile.

Word passed from nymph to disappointed nymph that Eddie's ship had come home to wife and bride at the wheel and a million in the hold. Eddie and Mrs. Lane, it turned out, had slipped away, after a wedding in St. Mark's Roman Catholic Church, Bloomfield Hay, Brooklyn, for a honeymoon in Bermuda.

THERE WAS EDDIE.

Christmas passed, and Spring brought new styles to bathing decisions. The Manhattan bevy paraded forth to June, looked along the pier, shivered into the water to see who first could call for help.

The there was Eddie. Whispers waffled from parasol to parasol. Eddie's ship had come in, to be sure, but here he was already scuttling it. Eddie had found new companion and "Bermuda" was announced that he had "seized 20 cases of liquor." The "arrest" and his "prisoner" then walked out and disappeared.

That was a gay Summer!

And now, June, 1922, when the fairing daughters of Manhattan go out to swim, comes the last reel. The authorities have examined the wreck of Eddie's ship and have proclaimed no hope of salvage.

A VERY BUSY MAN.

Mrs. Zimmerman is described in despatches from Philadelphia as a "wealthy matron" of that city. She was Mrs. Cornelius A. Lane, and part of the fortune her husband left her was a $120,000 villa on Manhattan Beach.

Whether the widow would repair with her cars and her six children to the warm months. The children had to learn to swim, and so did Mrs. Lane. Eddie taught them all.

The former officer denied bail, has spent three of the five years in jail in New Orleans, and Arthur Fuller, police inspector from Bombay, who made the arrest here in 1918, remained in the city two years awaiting the outcome of the extradition proceedings, only to be ordered home without his prisoner.

With all this, Collins, who was made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor of France, gazetted as a Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George by Britain, and who received the thanks of the Canadian government by special act of Parliament, still is undaunted.

cause of the charges and letter castigation directed against him by the Masons. Acree termed the convention a "nuisance," a circus and commendatory as that honored Masonic functions."

The scathing remarks of Acree spurred among the delegates the wild fire. Acree then vanished.

Was he ordered to go from Boston by Masons?

Was he put aboard a train and told to flee?

Or did he go because of fear of the consequences of his attempt to foist Klankism on the Masons?

All efforts to find out what caused him so suddenly change his mind and disappear have failed. No one is willing to talk about him—to reporters. Still, his strange disappearance is much discussed by Masons

SCORES DELEGATES

In his statement, Acree said:

"Those men do not represent the real Masonry of America. More than 100 delegates have refused register and have returned home, disgusted with the so-called National League of Masonic Clubs. Th entertainment here is so at variance with the open-hearted variety recently provided for the Shriners at Washington that it is laughable, even to be called entertainment at all.

"Only the delegates themselves are included in the entertainment—about 600 in number, to use their own figures—the rest being taxed more than $8.20 each to enjoy Boston's hospitality. Forty thousand at this figure makes quite a little sum for somebody."

MISSION FAILURE.

Acree's mission here was a failure. He sought to obtain subscriptions for his paper. Before he left Boston he claimed more than two hundred new subscribers.

This statement, however, was disputed by W. L. Terhune, president of the Boston Masonic Club, who said not more than five agreed to take the paper.

"I shall do everything in my power to repudiate this newspaper of Ku Klux Klan propaganda," said President Terhune.

MASONS OUTSPOKEN.

Officials and delegates expressed themselves in no uncertain terms regarding the attempts to link up the two organizations. The conservative element preferred to ignore the matter, being content to stand onto the statement of high Masonic, officials that there is no connection between the two bodies.

Headed by Major-General Edwards, 15,000 Masons in parade made the big colorful feature today.

Applauding and cheering spectators massed along the parade route.

The parade of delegates, representing 300 Masonic clubs, with bands and floats, was led by Major-General Clarence R. Edwards.

Dr. H. M. Allen William B. Noll

The line formed off Commonwealth avenue, right resting on Arlington street, and moved promptly at 2:30 p. m. The line of march: Arlington street to Boylston street, Boylston street to Tremont, to Temple Place, to Washington, to School, to Beacon, to Charles street.

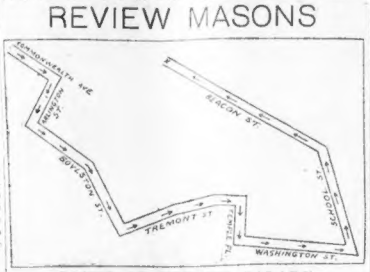
Mayor Curley reviewed the marchers in front of City Hall, accompanied by about 350 members of the Masonic Fraternity.

REVIEWED BY GOVERNOR.

At the State House, Governor Cox, and immediately beyond at the corner of Joy street the officers of the National League and the Convention Committee reviewed from automobiles parked on the right hand side of Beacon street.

Mounted police headed the line, followed by the Boston Commandery Band, General Edwards and his staff, officers of the National Guard, and Captain Richmond G. Stoelir, chief of staff, and his aides.

MAYOR AND GOVERNOR REVIEW MASONS



ROUTE OF TODAY'S PARADE

E. A. MacKinnon W. L. Terhune

Automobiles containing officers of the National League and Convention Committee, delegates of Masonic Clubs from Ohio, Georgia, Maryland, Virginia, Washington, D. C., Delaware and New Jersey followed.

Then came bands and floats in large numbers, and many special features including the Police Square Band and the Police Square Clubs of Massachusetts and New York City. Chief Albert Reid, president of the Fire Square Club of New York, leads the Masonic fire fighters.

At 5 p. m. the delegates leave Rowes Wharf for Hull and Paragon Park, where they will spend the evening. At the same time the East Boston Masonic Club keeps open house, starting at 5:30 p. m.

Prominent among the delegates are: Dr. H. Melvin Allen president of the National League of Masonic Clubs; William B. Noll, the vice-president; F. A. MacKinnon, secretary-treasurer; George H. Peterson, vice-president of the State of New Jersey Masonic Clubs; Charles A. MacHenry, president of the Virginia Masonic Clubs, and Chief Albert Reid, president of the Fire Square Club of New York, composed of New York fire fighters who are Masons.

Charles A. MacHenry George H. Peterson

Two hundred policemen and firemen, mebers of the Lambkins Club of Philadelphia, arrived today. They were met at Back Bay station by the Boston Police Square Club and New York Police Square Club. They were escorted to City Hall.

President Alexander M. Smith of the Lambskin Club presented a letter of greeting to Mayor Curley from Mayor J. Hampton Moore of Philadelphia.

With the Lambskins is their mascot, "Murphy," an Airedale trained to ride on the fender of a bandit-chasing automobile and leap to the car being pursued.

Opening period of the business session of the League today at the Copley Plaza was a wrangle over admission of reporters and other outsiders.

Gen. Amos Fries of U. S. Air Service moved to bar them. It appeared, on question, that the official stenographer was not a Mason. After much debate the barring motion was tabled.

PLAN $100,000 TEMPLE.

Credentials committee chairman made preliminary report of 312 delegates and 67 proxies present, representing 250 clubs.

Arthur R. Eaton, State vice-president for Pennsylvania, chairman of the by-laws committee, said suggestions had been made of incorporating in the by-laws this point about barring outsiders. The committee did not feel it should do up the League with a lot of regulations. It believed each convention should settle the matter for itself.

Charles A. McHenry of George Washington Lodge of Fredericksburg, Va., described plans for the $100,000 memorial temple to be erected to Washington at Fredericksburg. Washington was a past master of Fredericksburg Lodge. Brother McHenry said $250,000 had been raised. A delegate from the Police Square Club of New York announced his club's contribution of $200.

JUDGE'S DAUGHTER LAW SCHOOL STAR

New York, June 13.—Miss Catherine Chadwick Noyes, daughter of former Judge Walter Chadwick Noyes of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, won first honors in the 1923 graduating class of 319 students at New York University Law School.

'SALLIES' WILL WED TO TEST RULING

To test the ruling of Attorney-General Jay R. Benton that Salvation Army officials are not allowed to perform marriages, Colonel William N. McIntyre, chief of staff of the Salvation Army in Boston, will unite in marriage Captain Vera Patterson and Captain George Maltby of the Salvation Army in Higginson Hall, East Brookline street, South End, on June 26.

Colonel McIntyre declared that, as justice of the peace and as an officer of the Salvation Army, he has the right to perform the marriage.

Captain Patterson, head of the Chelsea Corps, with headquarters at No. 165 Winnisiet street, is twenty-two years old. She is a graduate of the Army's college in New York and it was there that she became acquainted with Captain Maltby, who is twenty-three years old and is the head of the finance department of the district of New York.

wheel of the family touring car. At 6:45 o'clock, when the haze was heavy, they drove along Main street near Greenwood bridge in Wakefield.

A truck in charge of a man named Antunes was parked on the right hand side of the road while Antunes was delivering milk. Young Pritchard failed, on account of the fog to see the truck until his car was almost up to it.

CAR TURNS OVER.

The son swerved the car sharply to the left to avoid collision. The car wheels caught in the nearest trolley track. This, combined with the sharp and sudden swerve, made the automobile turn turtle.

Miss Pritchard was thrown clear. The son was caught under the car, his skull fractured. The father, who was on the rear seat with his daughter, was caught under the car but landed on his dying son's body, which broke the shock of the father's fall.

The son's body remained by the roadside two hours before the medical examiner arrived and gave permission to remove it.

The son leaves a wife and two children, three years and eight months old.

The father works for the Otis Elevator Company on India street, Boston, where the son was also employed.

were continuing outrages against the foreigners; that American vessels had been fired on up the Yangtse river and the American flag insulted. American gunboats were said to be inadequate to protect their Nationals. Chinese officials were accused of violating the treaty in refusing to protect foreigners.

Travel between treaty ports on land or water was termed unsafe. The dispatch of cargoes was prevented, while the opium traffic was encouraged and flourished.

President Li made a spectacular dash from his residence to the station in a motor car, followed by cars containing his personal guards. The special train, was under steam.

BALKAN ARMIES MASS ALONG BULGAR LINE

Athens, June 13.—Bulgaria today is encircled by armies as a result of anxiety aroused throughout the Balkans by the Sofia revolution. Jugo-Slavia, Greece and Rumania are massing troops along the Bulgarian frontiers for protection.

London, June 13. (I.N.S.)—Further disorders were reported from Bulgaria today, but the real situation is obscured by a rigorous censorship imposed at Sofia.

Revolutionary troops engaged the bodyguard of former Premier Alexander Stambulisky, who is in hiding. Casualties resulted, but the outcome of the skirmish is not known.

One report said 300 members of the bodyguard surrender.

M. Zounaikoff, former minister of Agriculture in the "Peasant Government" was arrested while trying to reach the Turkish border.

Report from Paris said a large peasant army, estimated at almost 100,000 men, was moving upon Sofia.

The Zankhof government at Sofia declares there will be no change in Bulgarian foreign policy and that the government's chief aim will be to maintain Balkan peace.

A dispatch from Vienna quoted a Belgrade report as saying the Sofia government has proclaimed martial law throughout the nation. According to this same source, skirmishing broke out between government forces and peasant volunteers near Pazardkil, the latter claiming a success.

An Vienna dispatch said the chief of police at Sofia refused to turn over his office and was shot down During fighting in Sofia incendiary guns were employed and the Agrarians overpowered.

Government troops are reported under orders to capture Stambulisky alive, if possible.

ATTACK NEW HEAD OF PORTO RICO

Washington, June 13 (I. N. S.)—Fresh political trouble in Porto Rico, taking the form of bitter attacks on Horace M. Towner, the new territorial Governor, may lead to personal intervention by President Harding when he visits San Juan this Summer on his way back from Alaska.

According to reports, the old fires of political unrest which led to the resignation of R. Mont Reily from the Governorship are blazing merrily again, with the Socialists and Republicans lined up against Governor Towner. For many months the President and Secretary of War Weeks stood staunchly behind Governor Reily.

LAWYER SAYS WIFE HELPED KIDNAP HIM

Aurora, Ill., June 13.—Warren J. Lincoln, lawyer, disappeared on the night of April 29 under circumstances which led authorities to believe he had been slain, has returned.

He said he was attacked and beaten by two men on the night he vanished and taken to Chicago, where he was held captive. Later, he said, he escaped, fled to Baltimore and thence to New York and returned home. Lincoln said he was attacked while in bed, by several men accompanied by his wife, Mrs. Lincoln, against whom Lincoln recently instituted divorce proceedings, is believed to be in Chicago.

MRS. CARD SUES TO RECOVER $198,000

Trial of the suit of Mrs. Mary J. Card, octogenarian Mansfield widow, to recover her estate from Helen J. Trayes of Mansfield, Clarence A. Barnes, former Yale baseball star, and Howard P. Butler, Boston attorney, has begun before Master Thomas L. Wiles in the Suffolk County courthouse.

Mrs. Card claimed through her attorneys, James E., Daniel T. and Joseph P. O'Connell and John E. Crowley, that Barnes and Miss Trayes represented to Attorney Butler they were acting for her, and induced him to turn over to them all her securities. Butler denied Barnes made such representations, but admitted that $148,000 of $198,000 entrusted to him had been lost through poor investments.

H. P. Butler

Eugene T. Redmond, realty broker, who took over a number of the Card assets from Butler, testified he handled the property two years from July, 1918, and that he advanced $9,000 to redeem certain properties. He reimbursed himself by collections and sales, he said.

TOO BUSY WITH STILL TO COME INTO COURT

William Winkelwerder's excuse for not appearing in court to answer to a liquor charge was that he was in the woods near Dover tending a large operating still.

He was to have appeared in Federal Court before Judge Morris to answer to a charge of manufacturing.

Dry agents found him deep in the woods, devoting all his attention to the manufacture of an unlawful but perfect thirst. Sticks of sugar at intervals along the road led the enforcement agents to the seat of operations, where they found a 200-gallon still, 400 gallons of mash, and numerous glass jars of boiling moonbeams.

THIRD ARBITER TO BE CHOSEN SOON

MAKE WAR ON MOSQUITOS, URGES MAHONEY, VIA RADIO

Dr. Francis X. Mahoney, commissioner of health for Boston, has told the world, via Station WOI at Tufts College, how to get rid of the plague of mosquitoes which promises to be worse than ever this year by reason of the large amount of water in streams and low places.

"Spray swamps and stagnant pools with oil, if they cannot be drained," he said. "Do not permit even a tomato can full of stagnant water on your premises. See that the roof gutters of your house are not stopped up. Cut away grass and weeds from wet places. Mosquitoes cannot breed unless they have stagnant water for their larvae to swim in. If you comply with these you will have done your part.

"Mosquitoes are our deadly enemies. They menace our health, disturb our comfort and destroy our property values."

"I'LL GET YOU!" THIEF YELLS TO JUDGE

Plymouth, June 13.—"Three years isn't life. When I get out, I'll get you."

So exclaimed Jack Fulton, of South avenue, Whitman, after Judge Stanley E. Qua in Superior Court had passed sentence of from three to five years in State's Prison on him for four indictments charging larceny.

TOLD TO KEEP QUIET.

After he had heard the sentence, Fulton jumped up and demanded a new trial, declaring he had not had a square deal in the case. When he was told to keep quiet by the judge he made the foregoing threat.

Not heeding the prisoner's words, Judge Qua ordered Sheriff John Condon to remove Fulton from the court.

CRIMINAL RECORD.

Fulton had appealed sentence for the charges of larceny from the lower court. He is said to have a long record and has served various terms in penitentiaries in the East.

Isadore Dunkewitz of Brockton, was sentenced at the same session of the court to from three to six years in State's Prison, after he pleaded guilty to indictments charging breaking, entering and larceny. Dunkewitz has a long record and has served several prison terms.

MANUFACTURER INDICTED FOR PERJURY

Morris Zoff, thirty-five years old, of No. 26 Warren avenue, Chelsea, was arrested on an indictment warrant charging perjury, by Inspector Pierce of the district attorney's office.

Zoff, who is the treasurer of M. Zoff, Inc., dealers in bags and burlaps of Chelsea, is charged with giving false testimony in a civil suit in which he was the defendant in the Superior Court, March 6.

The suit was brought by P. Tobin for a promissory note of $469. The jury returned a verdict for Tobin.

During the hearing Judge Quinn ordered Zoff's arrest for perjury. The latter was arraigned and held for the grand jury in $2,500. The jury subsequently indicted him.

MYSTERY IN FINDING OF MAN SENSELESS

The police are trying to solve the mystery of how James Flynn, forty-four years old, of No. 185 Warren avenue, South End, came to be found lying unconscious on Appleton street, South End. His valuables were not stolen. Except for a vague reference to a fight tumbled by the injured man during a period of semi-consciousness in the City Hospital, the police have no clues. Flynn's name is on the danger list.

In Phone Battle

CHARLOTTE HIRST.

Fitchburg supervisor, dropped by telephone company, denies denouncing non-union operator Union co-workers are pledged to secure her reinstatement.

PHONE GIRLS IN PLEDGE TO AID EX-OPERATOR

Fitchburg, June 13.—Every member of the Telephone Workers' Union of this city is pledged to secure the reinstatement of Miss Charlotte Hirst, a supervisor in the local exchange, who was discharged after, it is alleged, she called a non-union operator a name.

The fight to reinstate her will be carried to General Superintendent George H. Dresser in Boston.

Miss Hirst emphatically denies she used the term. "I believe I was discharged as an example to others," said Miss Hirst to a Boston American reporter. "I admit that I talked union principles to the girls, but many others did the same.

"Although I have worked for the telephone company for more than ten years this is the first time I have been suspended. I have always done the best I could to give good service and have received flowers and candy from subscribers who thought I gave efficient service."

An effort to organize a separate union of operators was made at the home of Mrs. Elsie Smith in Pleasant street. Among those who attended the meeting were Miss Alice Reardon, Mrs. Rose Jacobson, Miss Pauline Beers, Miss Theresa Seeley, Miss Mary Nickeals, Miss Grace Carey, Miss Mary Humphrey, Miss Bessie Lambert, Miss Anna Olsen and Miss Celia Mitchel.

SOUTH BOSTON HOLD-UP MAN CAPTURED

Entering two near-beer saloons on Eighth street, South Boston, and holding up the proprietors at the point of a revolver, demanding money and drinks, Richard King, forty-four years old, of No. 122 G street, South Boston, threw both places in panic while waving a loaded thirty-eight-calibre gun in the air.

The first place visited was the saloon of Frank Harriman, at No. 501 Eighth street, where Harriman was busily engaged in the rear of the bar. Suddenly he looked around and faced a revolver.

FINDS NO MONEY.

Covering Harriman with the gun, King searched the money drawer but found nothing. He rushed out of the store, after which Harriman notified the police of the City Point station.

Flashing the gun in his hand, King rushed down Eighth street until he came to Edward Sheehy's near beer saloon at No. 542. Rushing up to Sheehy he demanded a glass of near beer. Frightened by King's appearance, Sheehy granted the request, but King became excited and left the building without drinking the contents of the glass.

PURSUED BY POLICE.

As he left Sheehy's place, King caught sight of Sergeant Flynn and Patrolmen Riley and Murray of the City Point Station, who had been sent for by Harriman.

King quickly placed the gun in his pocket and started down Eighth street towards his home. The police, with guns drawn, pursued King and caught him just as he was rushing into his own home.

Sergeant Flynn grappled with him, while Officer Murray relieved him of the gun.

He was booked on the charge of an attempted hold-up while armed. He will appear in South Boston Court today.

SAYS U. S. OFFICERS WEAR GERMAN ARMS

New York, June 13.—Charges that officers in the United States army and navy wear as part of their regulation equipment swords made in Germany will be investigated by a special committee of the Civitan Club, it was disclosed today. In the event it is proved that Germany is the source of the sidearms the committee's findings will be forwarded to the authorities in Washington.

Announcement of the investigation was made after F. J. H. Kracke, appraiser of the port of New York, had exhibited a sword in the course of an address, showing members of the club the words "Made in Germany" stamped into the metal. He said the weapon was one of 1,000 to arrive at the port of New York in the last year. All were designed for use by army and navy officers, he added.

LLOYD GEORGE COMES TO U. S. IN OCTOBER

London, June 13.—Former Prime Minister Lloyd George has arranged for a visit to the United States sometime in October. He will be accompanied by his wife. While the former premier undoubtedly will make several speeches on public occasions during the trip, there is no truth in the report that he has entered into an agreement for a regular lecture tour.

DORCHESTER AUTO PARADE ON JULY 4

This year's annual automobile parade in Dorchester, to be held on July 4th, will exceed previous years in the number of cars entered, and of those decorated, various committees declared at their meeting in the Municipal building, Dorchester.

The Dorchester Board of Trade, headed by President John J. Scurry, the Dorchester Business Men's Association, and the parade association, are working together to make the event a gala affair. A new feature will be automobiles decorated with colored bulbs, lighted by electricity.

ROOM MATE STEALS GIRL'S CLOTHING

Clothing of Peggy Kelley, nineteen years old, of New York, was stolen by a chance acquaintance she met on a train while enroute to Boston in search of employment. The two girls became friendly during the journey and decided to room together. They found lodging at No. 675 Massachusetts avenue, South End. Returning from work, Miss Kelley found her room mate had left, taking her prettiest dresses.

600 BOY SCOUTS TO CAMP AT FORT

Six hundred Boy Scouts, members of the Old Colony Council, will have an outing Friday and Saturday at Fort Revere. Many of these scouts come from Braintree, Hingham and adjoining towns. Brigadier-General M. L. Hersey, commanding the First Coast Artillery district, will greet the scouts.

TRAFFIC TIED UP HOURS BY B.-M. DERAILMENT

Lowell, June 13.—Hundreds of Lowell-bound passengers on trains from Boston to this city were forced to walk five miles from the North Billerica station of the Boston & Maine railroad as the result of the derailment of an engine drawing a Boston to Lowell local.

The derailment, which was caused by a broken flange on the driving wheel, gave a shaking up and scare to the half dozen passengers aboard the local. North bound traffic over the Southern division of the B. & M. was tied up for several hours.

The local was pulling out of the North Billerica station on the last lap of its run from Boston to Lowell when the engine and tender left the rails. The engine was hauling seven passenger coaches, but all except the half dozen passengers had alighted at stations on route here.

Man Found Helpless

John Henderson, sixty-three years old, of No. 1025 Washington street, South End, was found in a weak condition in Andrew square, South Boston. He was taken to the Athens street police station and later removed to the City Hospital.

SUPER HERO LEAVES FOR BOMBAY TO FACE SWINDLE CHARGE

FRIEND OF KING OF ENGLAND

Colonel Collins, in New Orleans Jail for Years Fighting Extradition, Loses Battle

New Orleans, June 13.—Inspector George Miles of Scotland Yard had passage today on the liner Celtic for New York for himself and Charles Glenn Collins, former lieutenant-colonel in the British army.

It is the first lap of a journey intended to end in Bombay, India. Collins, a veteran of the Boer war, who served under Kitchener in Egypt and during the World War, won citations for gallantry in the fighting at Antwerp, Gallipoli and in France, is charged by a Bombay firm with having swindled it of $20,000.

Colonel Collins has lost one of the longest extradition fights in the history of the country—a fight that lasted more than five years, that seesawed between the United States district courts in New York and New Orleans, reached the Supreme Court of the United States four times and cost thousands of dollars more than the amount involved.

VIVIENNE SEGAL

Insistent rumors that Vivienne Segal, piquant light opera prima donna, has promised to become Mrs. Robert Ames, under certain contingencies, are flashing about the stage world in New York. Miss Segal is appearing in "Adrienne" and Ames is playing the leading role in "Icebound." Neither will confirm nor deny the report, but friends of Miss Segal say that privately she does not deny that if all goes well she may become Mrs. Ames. Ames is being sued for divorce.

4 SUSPECTS HELD IN TIRE THEFT CASE.

Four men are being held as suspicious persons at Brighton police station in relation to the burglary of the John J. Hines tire store at No. 594 Washington street, Brighton, and the larceny of tires valued at $550.

They gave the names of Joseph S. McDonald, No. 172 Hampshire street, Cambridge; Alfred L. Bigelow No. 31 Springfield street, Somerville; Albert French, No. 170 Tremont street, Somerville, and George Morey of No. 41 Woodward street, South Boston.

SCHWAB MAY BE FORCED TO TELL OF MRS. HAYES

New York, June 13.—A stiff legal battle to disprove Charles M. Schwab's repudiation of his signature on the "million-dollar guarantee" held by Mrs. Myrtle Bowman Hayes of Boston is in progress.

The first skirmish is being fought to break the veil of secrecy surrounding the acquaintanceship and financial relations, if any, between the multi-millionaire steel man and the little milliner, who blossomed out as a promoter of great projects on the strength of knowing Schwab.

George Edwin Joseph, attorney, who represents creditors of William C. Tobey, the bankrupt contractor, who undertook to build the Hotel Chatham in Boston, an ambitious apartment project, on the strength of the guarantee which Schwab has repudiated, said yesterday:

TO CLAIM CONTEMPT.

"The creditors are out to show that this guarantee which Mr. Tobey has listed as his principal asset is a valid obligation of Mr. Schwab.

"We will proceed this week before a Federal Judge of the Eastern District of New York at the post office building in Brooklyn to have Willard A. Mitchell, attorney for Mr. Schwab, adjudged in contempt if he continues to refuse to answer questions about what he had done at Mr. Schwab's request for Mrs. Hayes' benefit during the twenty years it is admitted Mr. Schwab has known her.

"We are waiting to get the stenographer's transcript of the questions and answers of Mr. Mitchell on Monday before Bankruptcy Referee Tipling. Mr. Mitchell admitted he had acted in Mr. Schwab's behalf in matters concerning Mrs. Hayes during the twenty-year period, but he refused to tell what those actions were.

"We believe that a court order compelling him to answer under pain of being adjudged in contempt will show that it is reasonable to suppose Mr. Schwab actually executed the guarantee."

Mr. Mitchell took the ground that the proposed inquiry was a fishing expedition and involved matters which he was professionally unable to divulge on account of the relation of attorney and client between him and Mr. Schwab.

WATCH OUT

There is a rather cruel deception being practiced on women who desire Palmolive Soap. Common soaps are shaped and colored like it. Some are given names which sound like Palmolive. But they offer you nothing of what you seek, which is benefit to your complexion.

Palmolive has won millions of users by its remarkable aid to beauty. The demand has spread almost the world over—wherever beauty lovers exist. Its unique results have made Palmolive the world's leading toilet soap.

What you prize in Palmolive is the skin effects which ordinary soaps never brought you. Then don't be cheated of them. Don't let somebody make you think that a like-looking soap is Palmolive.

Another value you get in Palmolive is a 25-cent quality for 10 cents. That is due to enormous volume.

A beauty soap—a scientific toilet soap for 10 cents is unique. You are cheated of that extra value when you get an imitation. Nothing in all ages has compared with a blend of palm and olive oil for skin beauty.

Never in a soap has that blend been perfected as it is in Palmolive Soap. That is why it won supreme place with beauty-loving people.

Be sure you get it. Look carefully at the name and the wrapper. Otherwise an ordinary soap may be substituted, and you will think that Palmolive has deteriorated.

1,000,000 HABROBRACONS RELEASED TO PREY UPON CORN BORER

PARASITES USED HERE TO BATTLE AGAINST PESTS

Four colonies of the Habrobracon family, numbering 1,000,000, have been established around Boston. The native heath of these wasp like parasites is the south of France. Work has been found for them in Arlington, Cambridge, Malden and Saugus. Their special job is to exterminate the corn borer.

Habrobracons are natural enemies of borers and have whipped them to a frazzle in France and Italy. They require a warm climate and the only four United States entomologists have is that they will not flourish in the cold and uneven weather of New England, where the borers abound.

FIRST IN 1917.

The borers were first noticed in this country in 1917. They came to Boston from Central Europe and have spread to every section of this country and Canada.

In this State alone they have damaged the gardens and farms so badly that more than one-half of the annual yield has been lost for the market, costing the farmers millions.

Various methods of fighting the pest have been tried by the Department of Agriculture and the laboratory at Arlington has been experimenting with a number of parasites. Some months ago a small shipment of the habrobracon was received from United States scientists in France, who had studied and were pleased by the manner in which this parasite attacks the borer. Under the fostering care of the Arlington experts these parasites have increased and multiplied wonderfully and have demonstrated at private trials that they are as effective in fighting the borer on American soil as on French.

"The borer is their dish," is the way one of the experts refers to their predatory feeding likes and dislikes.

They will not touch plants but will kill other pests than the corn borer although showing a preference for the latter. These parasites are small wasp like insects. They seek out the borer caterpillar and lay their eggs on his back.

FEED ON BORER.

These eggs hatch big batches of maggots which feed on the fatty parts of the borer. Having gorged themselves the maggots develop into full-fledged parasites, lay more eggs on the borer and go to new pastures. This process is repeated until the borer is destroyed.

The corn borer has become a real menace to the farmers of this continent. He not only destroys vast areas of corn, but also inflicts great injury upon crops of celery, beets, beans, rhubarb, potatoes, peppers, buckwheat and clover. So far the farm experts have found the insect guilty of ravaging 241 different varieties of plants. Next to corn, this pest has a fondness for beet leaves. He does not care much for the beet itself, but is dish on the tender leaves.

LANDED IN BOSTON.

Eastern Massachusetts has suffered more from the corn borer than any other section of New England. It is believed the pioneers of the pest came to a broom factory in Everett in a shipment of broom corn from Hungary. They are still coming and have made necessary the building of a special immigration plant at the Charlestown docks.

In a boat just arrived with a cargo of broom corn from Hungary every single was alive with borer immigrants. They were subjected to the strong heat that it is expected all were killed. They were found in the luggage of German immigrants a few days ago and have been located in the baggage of newcomers from Italy.

The new parasite will in time dispose of all the pests which resemble the borer but lack his viciousness, and will also kill the gypsy and the brown tail moth, for those who have been experimenting with the Habrobracon family at the Arlington laboratory will be very much disappointed.

Massachusetts is within the area into which the seventeen-year locusts are expected to emerge this Summer.

3000 HOMELESS IN FLOODS OF OKLAHOMA

Tulsa, Okla., June 13.—The Tulsa City Water Works shut down today because of the flood in the Arkansas River.

The Oklahoma Power Company, which provides most of the power for the city, was working a force to prevent its plant from being flooded and put out of commission.

The Arkansas River reached 19.5 feet at 2 A.M. and was rising at the rate of two inches an hour. Officials of the power plant said the plant could stand only another six inch rise. An 18 inch rise during the next twelve hours was predicted by the government weather bureau.

Water covers most of West Tulsa where big oil refineries are located. With the waters creeping up to the boilers, the Texas Company's Refinery was shut down and work stopped at the other plants.

U. S. ASK PARLEY FOR TREATY ON WATERWAY

Ottawa, Ont., June 12. (I.N.S.).—The United States government has asked Canada to call a conference between the two nations to negotiate a treaty by which the St. Lawrence River can be made into a deep waterway, George P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals, announced today.

The proposed conference is heralded here as the first official step toward the completion of the project.

The St. Lawrence waterway is being advocated chiefly by Canadian and mid-Western interests in the United States. So far, Graham said, the United States government had not discussed sharing the financial burden of such a project. Canada, however, hopes to recover a portion of the cost of construction.

HOSTILITY FOR FRANCE GROWS IN BRITAIN

London, June 13 (I. N. S.)—While diplomatic exchanges are proceeding continuously with Paris, Rome and Berlin, a solution of the German reparations crisis was obviously as far off as ever today. The cabinet canvassed the situation but is not expected to reach a final decision until next week.

Great Britain has asked France and Germany to make further explanation of their announced policies without attempting to aid any further proposals.

There is considerable pessimism in official circles but the foreign office insists it is too early to describe the situation as deadlocked.

Hope that the United States would make some move in response to the latest German offer is dwindling. France is already on record as rejecting the proposal of Secretary of State Hughes for an International Commission of Experts to determine how much indemnity Germany can pay.

COUE'S DISCIPLES GROW FEWER AND FEWER AS TIME PASSES

FORMULA FAILS TO WORK

150 in New York Clinic, However, Still Have Faith in Its Power

New York, June 13.—As light diminishes in inverse ratio to the distance from the source, so also the "day by day, in every way, I'm growing better and better" formula diminishes in effectiveness in this city since the formula's proponent has returned to France.

Monsieur Emile Coue greets customers in his drug store in Nancy, France, with his customary genial smile, and waves "bon jour," with his inevitable cigarette. In his leisure moments he counts his good American dollars.

The sale of rubber-tips for crutches and of sugar-coated pills is once more approaching normal.

150 STILL TRYING.

"Ca passe, ca passe," applies to Couism as well as to the real or imaginary ills "cured" on the twenty-tieth repetition of the Gallic apothecary's formula—a formula, incidentally, also found in the ancient Greek and Roman classics.

Two hundred and twenty persons enrolled in the New York clinic for the "day by day, in every way, eh bien, ca passe," treatment. Seventy have either died or sought another remedy. One hundred and fifty continue to repeat the formula, which they claim to have memorized so well that they can now repeat it in their sleep.

VET CONDUCTS CLINIC.

J. Stewart Rogerson, a former captain in the British army, conducts the New York clinic, incorporated as the National Coue Institute, with offices near the fashionable south end of Riverside Drive.

Rogerson was badly wounded during the war, and treated by Coue at Nancy. Although he still lights his cigarettes with his left hand, he believes Coue cured him of paralysis in his right side.

The 150 are getting "better and better," he says, and cites several instances to prove he knows whereof he speaks. Conscious auto-suggestion cured a woman of diabetes, he says. Dr. James R. Scott, consulting physician for the Cour corporation, substantiates him in his statement.

MORE CURES NECESSARY.

"But we must build up a large number of definite cures before we can be sure what weight this method of treatment can be given," Rogerson said.

He was modest in what he had to say for the efficiency of the Coue system. He made no sweeping statement or generalization. But he believes in the doctrine of Coue.

Visits to nearly twenty persons here personally treated by M. Coue, shows the Frenchman is not especially efficient in his absent treatments.

A woman suffering with all the ailments patent medicines claim to cure can still fall asleep by repeating "ca passe," but it always makes her sleepy to try to understand French, she said.

WORSE THAN DISEASE.

A male patient is confined to his bed. Before Couism he could hobble about on crutches, but the dramatic Frenchman once persuaded him to toss aside his crutches and hobble across a platform. Thousands cheered, but although the incident was several months ago, he has not yet recovered from the sudden exertion.

And so it goes. Day by day, those who repeat the "Day by day" formula are growing fewer and fewer.

OLIVE ADELAIDE BUTLER

Chided, it is said, by her mother, for keeping late hours and taking part in a night motorcycle party, this 17-year-old Everett girl went to the cellar in her home and shot herself, dying soon after in a hospital. Her mother denies quarreling with her daughter and says she acted queerly since Sunday

2 BULLETS END LIFE OF GIRL

Seventeen-year-old Olive Adelaide Butler, of No. 77 Lewis street, Everett, killed herself by sending two bullets into her brain in the cellar of her home after, it is alleged, she was chided by her mother for taking part in a late motorcycle party in the night previous.

The girl had returned late from the motorcycle party and fearing to go home, gained admittance to the apartment of Mrs. Fannie Mandell of No. 209 Broadway, Everett, and there spent the night.

In the morning Mrs. Mandell notified the girl's mother and the latter came and took her daughter home.

STOLE INTO HOUSE

Olive did not go to work the next day. Later in the day, one of her younger brothers said he saw her steal into the house, go up stairs, and then return and make her way to the cellar.

A moment later, the mother and several brothers and sisters who were in the house heard two shots coming from the cellar. They hurried down and found the girl on the floor. A 32-calibre automatic pistol lay beside her.

Olive was rushed to the Whidden Hospital, where she died soon after her arrival. Medical Examiner Durell declared the girl a suicide, and said he would perform no autopsy.

According to the girl's chum, Stepanie Easinky, sixteen years old, of No. 55 Paris street, Everett, who is employed in the same factory where Olive worked, Olive had confided to her that she had been quarrelling with her mother and that she contemplated running away. Her mother, Olive said, objected to the late hours she was keeping.

DENIES QUARREL

Mrs. Butler denied that she had quarrelled with her daughter before the girl killed herself.

"Olive has been acting queerly since Sunday," the mother said. "She had no reason for suicide. She was in perfect health."

Springfield Cop Hired to Scare Off Wild Deer

Springfield, June 13.—Residents of the exclusive Long Hill section of the city have employed a patrolman and armed him with a shotgun loaded with salt to scare away the wild deer which have recently invaded the beautiful flower gardens of that section and have destroyed rose shrubs and many valuable plants.

They apparently only make their breakfast off the tender garden shoots.

EIGHT ON TRIAL IN BEACON SWINDLE

Hayward A. Johnson, promoter of various automobile projects, charged with swindling the Beacon Securities Company out of $51,000, his father, Henry L. Johnson, charged with larceny of $2,500 from the same company, and a number of employes of the younger Johnson, charged with conspiring to steal, today went on trial in the Suffolk Superior Court.

The employes charged with conspiracy are: Charles E. Gould, John J. Kett, Clifton H. Daniels, Edward Cox, Frank Damarow and Otto A. Behrens.

Hayward A. Johnson, who lived with his father at Hyde Park, devised a smart body for a cheap car and was rising upon borrowed money to heights of affluence, when his career was cut short by an accident of fate.

He was starting to Philadelphia early last December when he was blinded by the lights of a car approaching and he ran off of the road and into the Charles River, near Soldiers Field. He obtained another car and continued his journey.

While he was gone the river was dragged for his body and his creditors began to ask questions.

His father's part in his Ponzi-like career, it is alleged, was to take up $2,500 of the younger man's notes, paying for them with a check which was protested.

MINNEAPOLIS LOST BY CONSERVATIVES

Minneapolis, June 13. — Mayor George E. Leach was re-elected and Conservatives lost control of the City Council in the municipal election. Mayor Leach, a World War veteran, had a majority of about 7,000 over his opponent, William A. Campbell. Campbell was reported to have the indorsement of the Ku Klux Klan, but he denied this.

The Conservatives will have only twelve seats in the twenty-six in the Council, with the Socialists and Non-Partisan Leaguers holding control.

STORK ON VISIT TO GARLAND FAMILY

The stork heard Mrs. Mary Wrenn Garland's wish and brought her a son. Charles Garland, her eccentric husband, was at her beside at the Phillips House of the Massachusetts General Hospital, when the eight-pound boy arrived.

Happiness reigns in the Garland family. Mrs. Garland and her husband have become reconciled.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip W. Wrenn of Dedham, wealthy parents of Mrs. Garland, likewise rejoiced. Only a few days before they had become reconciled with their daughter following an estrangement caused by her refusal to separate from her husband.

This is the second child to be born in the Garland family within the past week, the other having been born to Mr. and Mrs. James Garland. James Garland is a younger brother of Charles Garland. He does not accept his brother's free love doctrines.

The latest arrival in the Charles Garland family brings the total up to three; two sons and a daughter.

For weeks, Mrs. Garland has prayed that her third child would be a son, and physicians at the hospital reported she was unusually happy over his birth.

Charles Garland was also elated over the arrival of a son. He is now closer to his wife than at any time since their marriage, it is said. Whether he gives up his North Carver Farm, where with women companions he conducts his veritable school of radical thought on love and marriage, remains to be seen.

JAIL FOR SECOND RUM OFFENDERS

Lawrence, June 13.—Declaring that second offenders of the liquor law must go to jail, Judge George A. Flynn in superior criminal court refused to alter a sentence of one month in the house of correction, imposed in district court upon Joseph Murick who pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal keeping. Murick's lawyer pleaded for leniency for his client on the ground that the defendant's wife was the actual offender and the husband was but assuming the responsibility.

FORD PILES UP BIG LEAD IN STRAW VOTE

Henry Ford in the fourth week of the straw ballot taken by Collier's holds a great lead in Massachusetts over President Harding.

In addition, Ohio, native state of the President, swung in favor of the Detroit manufacturer. The figures were announced last night.

Ford now leads Harding by 11,297 votes, leaving other candidates far behind.

WINS PIVOT STATES.

Henry has taken the so-called doubtful States, the ones supposed to elect presidents, by storm. In California Ford has passed Johnson and in Wisconsin he has walked away from La Follette.

The auto king has carried all the States, excepting New York, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Mississippi.

The solid South has stood like a stonewall behind Ford.

Of the 128,276 votes cast, Ford has 28,467, Harding 27,170, McAdoo 10,126, Cox 9,149, Johnson 8,602, Hughes 7,606, Smith 6,723 and Hoover 5,059. Among the also-rans are Coolidge with 36, Debs 181, Bryan 77, Wilson 851, Taft 5, Roosevelt 10, Hearst 2 and Gompers 2.

SMITH THIRD IN N. E.

New England is with Ford in the figures collected by Collier's. Through the power of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts Ford is carrying the New England States with 4,227 ballots as against 3,796 for Harding. Governor Smith of New York comes next in line with 1,139 New England votes. Then in order are Johnson with 909, Cox 977, Hughes 882, McAdoo 861, Hoover 435, Wood 339, Borah 224, La Follette 159, Davis 110, and Underwood 38.

SALAD OIL AS FUEL IN NEW ENGINE

New York, June 13.—American technical authorities witnessed a demonstration of a Bavarian-made motor which, it was claimed by its inventor, Franz Lang of Munich, explodes anything from crude petroleum to salad oil, and promises to supplant all existing types of internal combustion engines used to propel anything from a motor car to an ocean liner.

Dr. Van H. Manning, director of research of the American Petroleum Institute, and a score of other experts, watched Lang demonstrate the motor, which, he declared, solves the problem of utilizing a low-grade, cheap oil in a small cylinder without the aid of electric ignition, pre-heaters, carburetors or auxiliary air pressure systems.

The innovation provided by the motor is an oil sprayer or liquid atomizer said to vaporize crude heavy oils as easily as the carburetor explodes gasoline.

MAYOR OF SEATTLE SHIFTS TO 10C. FARE

Seattle, Wash., June 13.—Mayor Edwin J. Brown, who went into office a year ago with lowered street car fares as one of his personal aims, announced today he would sign an ordinance increasing fares from 5 cents to 10 cents or three rides for a quarter. The Mayor said he had changed his position because he was convinced that a 5-cent fare would not meet the fixed charges of the system.

3,500 CHILDREN GET OUTING AT NANTASKET

Hundreds of poor children recruited by charitable societies of the city are the guests of the Boston Automobile Dealers' Association at Nantasket Beach today. Fleets of automobiles loaned by members of the Association conveyed the children from the West End, South End, North End, South Boston, East Boston, Roxbury, and other crowded districts, and conveyed them to the beach early in the day.

Secretary Chester I. Campbell, who is acting as host to the little folk, estimated that between 3500 and 4000 children are disporting on the Nantasket sands today.

Many of the children are from charitable institutions, some are invalids, some cripples, but the great majority are just kids from the tenement homes in congested districts.

Scores of automobiles and trucks were required to take the children to the beach and they sped in a long procession through Quincy, Sharon and other South Shore towns, the youngsters waving banners and shouting all the way.

Charitable women, physicians, nurses and other volunteers went along to minister to their needs. Games have been arranged for and lifeguards stationed along the beach to guard those who venture in the surf.

BRITAIN IS PLEASED WITH SOVIET NOTE

London, June 13 (I. N. S.).—Announcement was made at the Foreign Office today that a communication would be sent to Moscow at once, expressing satisfaction over Soviet Russia's latest note in the Russo-British dispute over Bolshevist propaganda in Asia and other issues.

LYNN YOUTH TAKES POISON BECAUSE HE CANNOT WED

Despondent because his sweetheart's parents had refused to sanction their marriage, Alfred Gauvin, twenty-three years old, of No. 28 Webster street, Lynn, drank poison in his room at his sweetheart's home. He is in Lynn Hospital in critical condition. Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Gilchrist, parents of Bertha Gilchrist, with whom young Gauvin had planned an elopement, had refused to consent to the marriage of their daughter when they learned of runaway marriage plans.

Gauvin was rushed to the hospital accompanied by his sobbing sweetheart. The parents are still obdurate and maintain that the young leather worker does not make enough money to support a wife and that a difference in religions would cause unhappiness.

WOMAN BLAMES GLARE OF COP FOR AUTO MIX-UP

Frightened, she says, by the "stern glare" of Patrolman Lawrence Brophy of Woburn, Mrs. Agnes McDonald, forty-three years old, of No. 92 Washington street, Woburn, lost control of a small runabout which she was operating without a license on Main street, this city. Before she got her equilibrium again, she had climbed two sidewalks, knocked Officer Brophy into a puddle of wet tar, run down and injured James Bolliches, a bystander, and wrecked the passing auto of David M. Breen. When Officer Brophy had removed Mrs. MacDonald from her car, he was informed that the fault was all his anyway.

"I knew I didn't have my license," explained Mrs. MacDonald, tearfully, "and when I saw you glaring at me I got all excited and the auto ran away with me."

PLOT TO KILL DEGOUTTE UNCOVERED BY THE FRENCH

Duesseldorf, June 13 (AP).—General Degoutte, commander-in-chief of the French army of occupation, and other high army officers are slated for assassination, the French military secret service reported today.

"An organized reign of terror," in the form of guerilla warfare, is being carried on against the occupying forces, military headquarters announced.

The authorities consider this a campaign of revenge by the Nationalists for the execution of the ex-German Officer Albert Schlageter for sabotage.

Mayence, June 13 (AP).—The death penalty has been imposed by a Frenchcourt-martial here on the German engineer, George, of the Baden Aniline & Soda Works at Ludwigshafen. He was charged with sabotage. The French authorities say he confessed.

HOME BUILDING ADVICE GRATIS AT PAINE'S

Social hostess for June brides, actresses, college graduates, millionairesses or indeed any and all classes of folk who need advice in furnishing a home is the unique position occupied by Mrs. Laura E. Ford at Paine's furniture store.

The hostess is not a salesman nor a professional interior decorator. To her come young couples who are about to furnish their first home. They are in a quandary. The bride wants this kind of a home and he wants that. Their purse may say something else.

The hostess greets them. She is a woman of tactful charm. She talks to them, studies them and finally the new home begins to take shape.

They have met a friend who apparently had no other object in life save making friends.

Contrast that with another case. A celebrated actress, wearied by divorce courts, lawyers and movies, bought an old colonial mansion in the country. She wanted advice concerning the furnishing of her new home. The hostess plays her part, the actress is introduced to a decorator and the problem is solved.

Classes of girls from high schools and colleges are daily instructed at Paine's. The hostess conducts these classes through the maze of workshops, shows the stuff in course of production, explains values, ideas and color schemes, and even exhibits complete rooms of real antiquity.

WIGGLING TOES IN WATER TRIED AS PARALYSIS CURE

Chicago, June 13.—Discovery of a simple but effective cure for infantile paralysis, that dread scourge which has baffled medical science, has been made by a Chicago woman, who prefers to retain her anonymity.

Her treatment has been tried out with marked success at the Northwestern University Medical School and has been adopted by the Visiting Nurses' Association.

The device consists of a large tank, partly filled with tepid water and equipped with a circular bench around the inside.

The crippled children merely sit for hours with their feet and legs immersed in the water, while they practice wiggling their toes.

U. S. FACES FOOD SHORTAGE BY IDLE FARM, SAYS SENATOR

Washington, June 13 (I. N. S.).—America is facing agricultural suicide as a result of the loss of manpower on her farms, Senator T. H. Caraway, Democrat, of Arkansas, declared today in urging governmental action to remedy the situation.

Unless emigration from the farms is stopped, Caraway warned, the nation will face a "stunning food shortage" within five years. He asserted he would sponsor remedial legislation in the next Congress.

"Fully 5,000,000 persons will leave the farms this Summer for the cities," he said. "More than 3,000,000 emigrated from the farms last year. Unless this emigration is halted, there will be a stunning food shortage within five years."

Joseph McNeil, five years old, of No. 27 Kent street, Roxbury, received a fractured skull and is on the danger list at the City Hospital as a result of being run over by an automobile on Dudley street, Roxbury. The car was operated by William Conley, of 27 Dean street, Dorchester, and was turning into Dudley street from Washington, when it is alleged the child dashed out from the sidewalk in the path of the car.

SAD MATE SAILS MINUS $600

When the Leyland line freighter Nordsian pulled out of her dock in East Boston today and shaped her course for Liverpool she had on board one of the saddest chief officers that ever left the port. It was this way, mates:

Albert F. Sears, known in the world of box fighters as Siggie Sears, went aboard the freighter and says says he: "Mate, have ye any good whiskey?" Says Mate Ernest Moffatt: "I have twelve cases of good old Johnny Walker."

A bargain was struck at $50 a case, Siggie went under the bow of the ship that night in a motor boat and the mate lowered the whiskey up to this point all stories agree. Siggie admits he got the "goods." What he denies is that he gave Moffatt a phony check on the Columbia Trust Company for $600.

Siggie was in the East Boston Court today on complaint of Moffatt but as the seaman had to leave on his ship the case was continued until July 26, when he will return. Siggie was released on $600 bail.

Some Strange Taxes

THERE was once a tax on beards, imposed by the Normans and directed against the Saxons. In the reign of William III., births, marriages and burials were taxed. There was also a tax on bachelors and on widowers, too.

THE WAYS OF A HUSBAND—By ANN LISLE

A Splendid Sequel to the Famous Story of Wedded Life, "When a Girl Marries"

HOW THE STORY STARTS

Jim and Anne find happiness again on a honeymoon spent in the apartment of Betty Winston, loaned for the occasion. They go to Dreamwold for a Sunday dinner with Jeanie and are met in the grounds by Rosa, who ignores Anne. Rosa advises the discharge of Mabel Storrs to save the big salary. This Anne resents. Evey helps Anne arrange her apartments and a dinner is given as a housewarming. Phoebe grows hysterical on receipt of Carlotta's wedding invitation. Carlotta asks for a tete-a-tete with Anne, and Jim stays in the room.

By Ann Lisle

"I'VE been a brute," I declared contritely. "I didn't see how hard it was for you to stand Rosa. I might have known that your Harrison traditions and your own fastidiousness would have a bad time with her—an even worse time than my prejudices did. Forgive me, dear. I'll get you free of Rosa. I'll make things easier for you."

Jim made a queer sound which I mistook for a groan. Then I decided it must be a chuckle. And he caught me to him and buried his face in the lace at my throat. But after a second he pushed me away and his eyes were slight like the paintings of young crusaders.

"You're — miles too good for me," he said. "I don't deserve such—faith and trust."

"You blessed boy. I'm not jealous of Rosa any more." I smiled.

"It isn't that," said Jim, breathlessly. His lips parted as if there was something else he wanted to say. Then he shook his head and, sitting down abruptly, began unlacing his shoes.

I felt as if a great moment had come—and gone.

Very Tender

Jim was very tender to me for a day or so after that strange evening when I got the feeling that there was something he wanted to confide to me—and couldn't.

In accordance with my promise I made a point of being attentive to Rosa. I took her to lunch one day and had her in a tea party. Then on Easter Day the next. But when I tried to persuade Ralph Lewis to invite her to the dinner and theatre party he was giving for Carlotta and Tony I got a flat refusal.

But I had stopped into the office before taking Betty to lunch, and had come in to visit me for a minute or two when I pounced on him with my request.

"Don't ask me to set aside my pet prejudice, Anne," he said gravely as he perched himself on a corner of my desk.

"I'll have to, if you care very much. But I'd feel so insincere inviting a woman I dislike as much as I do Mrs. Cordova. I'm a cad to say this—and twice a cad to refuse you anything—"

"No, you're not," I said tenderly, and read his attitude toward me at last. Interest with he had so far kept and politeness revealed a new experience before. "You're just your honest, square self. And don't feel to try to defend Rosa to yourself of former economies. Your parsimonious ways, the Junior Partner's wife has earned them twice over."

"Thanks," he said dryly, "but I could repay her handsomely, of course, if the job were perfect. If it were Phoebe would be with us, and our splendid young Neal. I'd have liked Aunt May, too—and I had half a notion to ask her when Betty decided she couldn't bring herself to come."

"She's going to the wedding," I began tactlessly, and instantly on the defensive against a slight to Carlotta.

"That's all right," said Ralph. "It's at Carlotta's house. If I had a house for my entertaining, Betty'd come. It's this restaurant business that gets her. I'm not planning to ask any one in Betty's place. I don't mind being the seventh to a seat."

But it turned out to be a seat after all, for while we were dressing for Ralph's dinner Jim received a telegram calling him to an important meeting the next morning at 10 in a city nearly 500 miles away. There was nothing to do but make a dash for the next train, which left at 7.

I flung a few things into Jim's bag while he changed back to street clothes. There was no time to call Ralph, and anyway it didn't matter much if I telephoned him at once or told him half an hour later that Jim had been compelled to dash out of town.

The Odd Seventh

The dinner was set for seven, and we were all to meet at the restaurant. Jim drove me there on his way to the station, which was only a few blocks distant, and I went in to wait for the rest of the crowd, who couldn't be expected for some time. Ralph, however, was a punctilious host and arrived promptly on the hour.

While I was explaining Jim's business summons a party of five came into the ante-room and swept through to the main restaurant. I caught a glimpse of an adorably pretty little girl, who looked like an old-fashioned moss rose in her soft pinks and greens. There were three distinguished looking men and a tall, rangy woman, who walked along in a flowing black satin cloak and a cavalier hat veiled in black lace.

"Funny how a figure like that arrests your attention, and you hardly notice a cutie like the pink and white child," I commented in order to keep the personal note out of our conversation.

"I was conscious of my attention elsewhere," said Ralph quietly and in a firm tone that told me he wasn't keen to continue it.

If I had known you from [illegible] Jim so much that you think my party a failure I'll have to be right on the job, won't I? And you're an arresting figure yourself in that lovely dress of yours. It looks like orchids with crushed raspberry sauce."

"It's amethyst veiled in cerise," I laughed.

Carlotta and Tony arrived just then, with Jeanie and Pat tenable after, so we proceeded to the table Ralph had reserved. It was at the farther end of the dining room and was beautifully laid and waiting for us.

At Carlotta's place was a corsage of lilies of the valley and red roses; at Jeanie's, gardenias and killarneys, and at mine orchids and lavender sweet peas. I was holding my flowers off examining the perfect color blending when I felt a pair of quizzical eyes fixed on my face.

AN ODD BEAUTY.

Looking up, I found myself under the tawny gray-green gaze of a pair of peering, near-sighted-looking eyes. I recognized the woman of the cavalier hat and Her hair was piled high in a dismatin cape. She had removed both. array that may have been studied —or lazy. It was tawny like her eyes. Her full-lipped mouth, strong throat and the flexible molding of features and line had something leonine in their quality.

The Boy She Left Behind Her

DRAWN BY PEGGY PRENTICE

Copyright, 1923, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

WHAT a difference just a few years make! How the whirling of Time sweeps its kaleidoscopic changes into patterns ever new! Countless are the variations played to the old, wistful phrase, "It seems only yesterday"—

There's the boy you used to know. Where is he now? Do you ever see him and, seeing him, do you wonder how in the wide world you ever could have loved him?

And there's the girl—THE girl! What has become of her? The heart's entwined that you carved into the old tree back home—they're still there, but she is gone. Is she really the girl whose face you see upon the poster—the star of the picture play?—PEGGY PRENTICE.

THE HE MAN

SHE FLEW WITH HIM TO THE JUNGLE

By George Agnew Chamberlain

THAT was a name that M'sungo knew best of all names in the world. It was his own. But even if Andrea had been watching him it is doubtful if she would have read correctly the sudden tenacity that shot through his frame. He turned on her a slanting glance. "What about Trevor?" he asked coolly.

"It was he that really made a flyer out of my brother Harry," said Andrea. "Harry was attached to the medical board that handled the case and he said tht when the ranking M. O. passed sentence in the nicest way he could but told Trevor he'd have to take a long holiday and that he would never fly again because he had lost his nerve, Trevor turned a bit white, stood very straight and said, 'You lie!'"

"Damn fool," commented M'sungo.

"Perhaps," conceded Andrea. "But there must have been something in the way he did it that was deeper than the words because all those officers were ready on the spot to swear that what they had heard was, 'Thank you, sir,' and Harry—Well, Harry, has turned out a wonder and he says it's because he always goes up on the honor of Trevor, the nerviest man that ever flew."

Andrea looked at her companion and caught on his face a light of exaltation, as though he were thinking of elephant. "Why," she cried, outraged, "you haven't been listening!"

"Oh, yes, I have," he answered promptly, coming back to earth by way of a man's full load. "Every word. Good for Harry."

Andrea studied his face, the shadow of a question in her own. "By the way," she said, "you are an American."

"Sure thing," he answered, meeting her eyes squarely.

"Trevor was a Britisher, of course. But Canadians and Americans are a lot alike, aren't they?"

He contemplated his answer with a quirk of humor on his lips. "Now-a-days," he said finally, "there's no reason why we should blush over saying 'yes' to that!"

On the day following M'sungo received a message to the effect that his steamer had arrived and was already taking on its wares. house cargo and could do with three tons more. Andrea had previously thought him a gormand for work; now she discovered a maniac.

"It's a clean-up," he declared. "In another month the rains will be here, there'll be no working in the forest, the game will scatter, the natives will want to plant. And what's more, with this cargo I'll pass the million dollar mark. That doesn't mean anything to you but it's my stake—the stake I'd set my heart on."

He took all hands off production and put them to baling and packing. From the reeds along the river he dragged to light a veritable fleet of scows. They were up-ended along the bank, scraped, caulked and pitched. One after another they were floated out into waist-high water and anchored. The days were no longer enough. Every woman in the camp was set to making long, tightly bound palm-leaf torches and the pickaninns from eight years up were organized into squads to light the night shift through the short hours of darkness. M'sungo took his sleep, if he took any, leaning against a tree near the nest of hand pressure baling-machines.

These machines were his own invention and the source of much pride and comfort. They were sliding boxes of sheet iron, placed end to end in sets of five. At one extremity they were anchored solidly, at the other end was a block and tackle made fast to any convenient tree and attached to a thin wire rope which passed through the length of the tier, carrying with it a false end to each box. These were packed as tightly with fiber as trampling feet could fill them; then a long, grooved cover was clamped on and the crew sent to the ropes.

It was a rough enough device but it worked. Out of each box came a block of fiber just the size and weight of a man's full load, tightly wired and dense enough to shed any moisture short of a drenching. All hands were kept steadily at this work until it was completed. At its finish, when all the available material was stacked along the edge of the forest in great oblong piles that looked like newly cut timber, M'sungo gave a great sigh.

To each ten men was allotted a tin of marmalade; to each twenty a box of crackers; to each four, one load of salt and a demijohn of cheap but sound wine. Andrea watched this wholesale depletion of the white man's stores and began to wonder. As she wondered, her heart went way up and then way down. Was this the beginning of another end? Was she sorry or was she glad? She looked back on the few days of her new life and they seemed already to have stretched into years. She was too young or too careless to have learned that time passes swiftly only to those who are in a rut of daily routine, dragging tragically under the blows of sorrow and almost forgetting itself entirely when joys are various.

She was astounded to think how free her mind had grown from worries over the irrevocable; each thing she did had become merely the natural thing as though all actions in that camp were in some manner allied with the plain, straightforward thoughts and speech of its master. Under the impulse of the sign of a general break-up, she awoke to her old consciousness as though from a long and pleasant trance. Her heart grew heavy within her.

M'sungo was too busy to pay much heed to her but as great was his silent elation when the long strings of bellowing and splashing carriers began to load the barges, heaping each to incredible heights, that she caught it and, unprovoked, passed long hours on the river bank watching black after black plunge waist high into the discolored water.

"Why aren't they afraid?" she said at last.

"No reason to be," said M'sungo shortly. "There are only two things that a croc really minds: one is a bullet through the spine and the other is noise."

WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

"I was born an American; I will live an American; I shall die an American."

Webster was proud of his American birthright and never ceased extolling it. The noble sentiment we quote is from a speech delivered July 17, 1800.

"Too low they build who build beneath the stars."

TELL THIS AT DINNER

The Italian workman in the backwoods was warned to look out for rattlesnakes. He was assured, however, that a snake would never strike until after sounding the rattles.

One day while seated on a log eating his lunch the Italian saw a rattlesnake coiled ready to strike. He lifted his legs carefully, with the intention of darting away the moment the rattles should sound their warning. But just as his feet cleared the top of the log the snake struck out and its fangs were buried in the wood only the faction of an inch below the Italian's trousers.

The frightened man fled madly, but he took breath to shriek over his shoulder:

"Idiot! Why you no ringa da bell?"

A HAPPY DISPOSITION

IT'S A VALUABLE ASSET TO CULTIVATE

By Beatrice Fairfax.

MOST of us go around looking for the day to cloud up before evening. And sometimes it does. But is that any reason for clouding all the sunny hours with anticipations on the gray ones?

Haven't you risen some morning with a song on your lips, a lilt to your voice, fairly a-tiptoe with the joy of living on a day of Spring magic? And suddenly haven't you hauled yourself up short, deliberately exacting the hop and whip from your steps and the thrill from your voice in order to fit yourself for the great "preachment" you were about to deliver to yourself?

"Stop acting like a two-year-old. What is it all about? There's nothing to be so excited about in a little sunshine. Anyway, it probably won't last. It's sure to cloud up before night."

That "It's-sure-to-cloud-up-before night" attitude is one of the most destructive ones known to humanity. And one of the most utterly stupid ones, as well.

Why not have a happy disposition? That can be produced by joyous thinking just as surely as the dismal one is the result of pessimistic thinking.

A happy disposition—and a sundial—mark only the sunny hours. When it rains and there isn't any sun to cast a shadow, the sundial ignores the existence of time. It simply counts out the dark days. From the sundial's point of view those dark days and hours do not exist. That is a good point of view. Why not have one like it?

This is how to go about cultivating a "sundial disposition":

First, have it out with yourself on the subject of worry. Worry is silly, lazy, destructive and absolutely without the force or initiative to do a thing but brood over things which may never happen—and probably won't be so bad if they do. Worry never got anyone anywhere.

Suppose Mr. Cave Man had sat and worried over the fact that the animals had teeth and claws far stronger than his and speed to outstrip him? He would have been killed and devoured and there wouldn't have been here to do any worrying of our own. But Mr. Cave-Man sat and worked instead of sitting and worrying. And he found ways of making weapons and defences with which to meet not only the tiger and the eagle but also the lightning and the rain.

So our ancestor, Mr. C. M., left us a hint and a heritage. Work fills the mind and doesn't leave much room for worry to creep in and fret. That first requisite for a sundial disposition is work. And you'll find that work is an invincible foe to worry.

Try it once 'twill be your favorite too.

As They Do in Utopia

By Les Conklin

"DARLING, I have a surprise for you," said young Less Noves as he tumbled into the Fiffelsinger flat.

"What is it?" inquired beautiful Hortense Fiffelsinger. "Have you decided to take me to the movies for a change?"

"No. I got you an engagement ring. Isn't it beautiful!"

"My," said Hortense as she gazed the sparkling gem. "It looks like a real diamond, doesn't it. Are you going to buy it?"

"Yes, I was the ring about it," admitted Less. "I paid $5 down on it and ought to be able to work the remainder off in easy payments by cleaning up the hens given me the rube he promised."

"Where did you get it," inquired Hortense, "at Steffany's?"

"No at the pawnbroker's just around the corner," replied Less. "It looked so nice in the window and was so cheap that I couldn't resist buying it."

"Isn't that romantic!" exclaimed Hortense. "Just think, maybe some great lady wore it once upon a time. I'll help mother take in washing next week so we can get it paid for right away."

"What's the idea, Polonius?" inquired Mrs. Prunella Pistachio as she discovered her husband putting on a new necktie. "Are you going to a wedding or something?"

"No. I'm going down to the lodge," replied Polonius. "Mrs. Rafferty had triplets last night and I'm going to raffle off my old grand ring to buy her a baby carriage. Rafferty wasn't expecting such a bumper crop and the one that he got is far too small."

"Oh, you dear, kind man," exclaimed Prunella, "you're always doing something like that. Couldn't we help Mrs. Rafferty out by raising two of the kids for her?"

"Great!" said Mr. Pistachio enthusiastically, "then we won't be so lonesome nights. I'll pick out the two homeliest kids of the three and bring them home with me."

"Good morning, Mr. Blaine," said young Leon MacDuff to the manager of the famous Lafe Bee. "Do you need a good ball player?"

"Why, sure," said the manager. "Do you know of any?"

"Yes," replied MacDuff, "me. When I played with the Polar Bears the owner one on the club who could outbat me was the owner's wife."

RACERS IN SHAPE FOR CONTESTS

By GUS DALY

Old Confederate Park, Medford, will open wide its gates tomorrow, it being the inaugural meeting of the Bay State short skip circuit for light harness racers, for the season of 1923, which will mark the tenth year of this healthful and wholesome sport, under its auspices.

Everything points to three days of high class racing, and the card is filled to the limit, as will be noted by a glance.

We have never seen or heard any horse that could go the mile in 2.00 flat, but we have seen many that could go a mile in 2.00 flat, and we have heard of others that could do better if the occasion arose.

Two out of three! Plan on races.

All of the events are to be contested in two in three heats, with the exception of the opening day's program, when the first heat of the 2.30 pacers will be run off in order to get the card under way without further delay.

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

THE latest thing that girls in Paris are wearing now are "Dance bumpers." But judging by the way some of them dance, what they really need are shock absorbers.

SOME dance halls are getting so crowded that a lot of pavilions are putting in one-way floors.

SEVERAL of these places are so small that you can't help bumping each other. A man went to a dance hall the other evening and ran into his wife.

WHAT every dance hall needs is a traffic cop.

BUT the way some couples dance it would take a motorcycle cop to catch them.

A MAN will bump into a girl and and maybe knock all the beads off her new dress, but she can't report him because she doesn't know his name. All men should be compelled to wear a license number on their coat tail.

CAN you imagine a dame stepping in the middle of a beautiful waltz to take a guy's number?

EVEN if she did, the chances are it wouldn't do her any good, he'd probably be using his brother's license.

DANCE halls ought to be under the supervision of the traffic department. Some couples dance so slowly that by rights they should get a ticket for parking too long.

A GUY at a dance hall the other evening had two black eyes. If the management had had a traffic cop there he could have been arrested for dancing without any lights.

THIS license idea would be great, too, it would give the police a chance to pick up a lot of stolen coats.

HE'D know there was something funny if he saw a guy from New York dancing with a California license.

STILL, with all these endurance contest going on, he wouldn't know but what this bird danced all the way from the coast.

NOW that the dames are wearing bumpers, the men ought to carry a horn and honk it every time they get near a girl.

IT wouldn't be a bad idea, either, for the girls to wear "stop" lights on their back.

SOME couples want the whole floor. There are just as many road hogs inside as outside.

OF course they don't shine their headlights in your eyes, but they blind you with their diamonds.

A WELL known automobile manufacturer made walking a pleasure, and now the dancers are even taking the pleasure out of walking.

KEEP YOUR HUSBAND PROUD OF YOU AND YOU WILL KEEP YOUR HUSBAND

"When my husband suggests to me that I dress in a certain way or adopt styles which are merely popular in effect than I am wrong, I take his advice. The result is that he is proud of me every time we go out. It makes a most contended husband when wives strive as in the courting days to dress to please."

This was the reply of one woman when asked why she and her husband seemed so happy all the time. "He seems to think you are all there is of it," said her friend.

The young man is more anxious to be seen with an attractively dressed girl than he is to be seen with one not so well dressed.

Husbands like to have their wives dress well. Husbands are only boys with a few more years added to their heads.

A husband always feels flattered when his wife is admired for her beauty, her charm, her grace and her gowns.

He likes to feel that he has a wife who receives favorable and honorable mention and attention.

He wants to be proud of her and a wife should encourage him along this line, as far as she can.

Physical Philosophy

"Yes," said the worldly friend; "a little minor household property damage often affords far more relief."

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

New York's State bankers are gathered at Atlantic City for a three-day convention. Perhaps foolishly, they invited me to address them. They wanted me to talk on "What Next?"

Readers of this column are familiar with how I feel regarding what next we should expect—and work for—in business. That was my main theme.

But I took advantage of the opportunity to talk straight out to New York bankers on one matter now much in the public eye, a matter not wholly free from connection with bankers.

Bluntly I asked the bankers if they didn't have some responsibility for the dishonest high-hat share conditions now being flaunted.

I believe they have, for if no respectable bank had accepted the accounts of the racketeers, and thus prevented them from getting checking facilities, the swindlers would not have been able to swindle the public out of some millions of dollars.

I admitted that I was ashamed to think that I and other writers on finance and business had failed to so educate the people that they would not have handed over several hundred million dollars during the last year to fake promoters, swindling brokers and other vendors of useless securities. I told the bankers they also should feel ashamed of the ineffective part they had played. Then I added:

"I think we ought not merely to be ashamed that we have failed to save the public such terrific losses, but I think we ought to be a little bit alarmed. Why? As I see it, the greatest danger confronting Banking and business in the United States is not Bolshevism but the tendency, the growing tendency, to hedge business with red tape, to curb business freedom, to pass restrictive laws, to forbid this, that and the next thing. An example, and probably a portentous example, is the law that recently took effect covering trading in grain futures.

"Big business and high finance invited, by their own conduct in the bad old days, a good deal of what is now taking place. They so conducted themselves that the public learned to distrust them. They also learned to fear them. They still fear them. However, the fact is that big business and high finance are now more anxious to walk straight.

"Vanderlip II was who coined the phrase that we were 'a nation of economic illiterates.' Well, in a sense we still are. The only way you can ever effectively cure this evil is through education.

"Might I suggest this to the banks and most conservative? That they allot anywhere from 10 to 25 per cent. of their advertising space and their advertising expenditures to positive, constructive work? I don't suggest that you do this as a matter of altruism, but as an investment. The greatest nation of this country did, to my mind, the greatest work of all during the war, and I think that it would pay the financial institutions of America to adopt towards this great peace problem the same broad, patriotic attitude that they adopted toward the winning of the war.

"Another tremendous development that is coming in this country is the wider distribution of stock among the people. The electric light and power companies alone in the last eight years have attracted 425,000 customer owners of their stock, and they estimate that within three years the total will be a million. Personally, I believe it will be larger this year. These companies are raising from their own customers between $300,000,000 and $350,000,000 through stock sales, which is equal to about one-third of their total capital requirements for the year.

"Recent revelations have tended to shake many people's faith in brokers. I believe that you men are truly enough to find some means whereby you can play an important and profitable part in this coming development.

"We are going to have a new middle class in the United States. The drift is all towards business, big business and in finance, as you well know. The small shopkeeper, the small manufacturer, the small merchant, the small man in every line is decreasing and we are going to have big, powerful organizations with enormous working forces. I believe we are going to see develop thrifty employes in tremendous numbers and that we are going to see these men develop into men of considerable substance. The wisest counties today are the ones that are doing most to bring this very thing through stock ownership plans, bonus plans, profit sharing plans, etc., through stock.

"Your problem is to get close to these men, to get them coming to you about their investments and also, of course, get them to come to you to arrange for handling their estimates. That may strike you as pleasure business, but, after all, the highest building is the world was built on nickels and dimes."

Let me add that I find our bankers are adopting a very sensible and sound attitude towards conserving good business. They are anxious to do their bits.

Rails and Equipments Most Active in Irregular New York Stock Market

N. Y. CENTRAL IS MOST ACTIVE AND FIRM

Railroads an equipments were most active and rather firm in an irregular New York stock market today. Money moved at 4 per cent. New York Central was most active and firm, featuring the forenoon trading.

Kelly-Springfield Tire, U. S. Rubber and Consolidated Textile sold for new 1923 highs.

General Electric was up better than 2 points. There were none of better game in American Locomotive and Chesapeake & Ohio.

Manhattan dropped 2 points in reflection of reduced dividend. Woolworth was up better than 3 points.

There were losses of a point or more in Baltimore and Ohio, Norfolk and Western, Mack Truck, Pressed Steel and refiners and Canadian Pacific.

A splendid volume of business is moving and the railroad net receipts as clearly evidenced by bank clearings, car loadings and new construction. The acute paralysis that developed in March has passed and merchants are displaying more confidence, their chains of heart making possible continuation of heavy manufacturing operations.

But the margin of profit is proving unsatisfactory in many lines. Wage advances and cost of material that never was cut in the last deflation as far as most corporate expenditures would indicate have brought costs to a point where, in strict commercial justice, higher finished goods prices are justified. Yet demand is too cautious to court disaster by notching up prices.

Meantime the peak has clearly been passed in some activities. Crude oil, following heavy curtailment of production and just at a time when consumption of gasoline is making seasonals and sharply, is in over supply. Refiners and producers are nearing income accounts of far different complexion than seven or eight months ago.

Wall St. Gossip

DURING May, Burlington's freight traffic increased 8.8 per cent. over 1922. For five months Burlington handled 831,471 carloads, against 697,191.

NEGOTIATIONS are under way for a merger of Michigan Stamping Co. with Briggs Manufacturing Co.

CONTROL of Erie Railroad is understood to be lodged again with George F. Baker, chairman of First National Bank.

ST. PAUL should continue its impressive earnings record in the May statement. Gross will be as good as April's $14,000,000.

SAN Francisco Stock Exchange has voted to adopt commission rates charged by New York Exchange for sale and purchase of stocks and bonds.

MANHATTAN Bridge Three Cent Line dividend due at this time will not be paid. There is $450,000 common outstanding on which 5 per cent. annually has been paid since 1919.

MOON Motors went into new high ground on move on expectation of establishment of regular $2 annual dividend rate and declaration of extra dividend of 50 cents to $1.

WABASH preferred A was active around best price on current move, reflecting road's current prosperity.

EXPANDING earnings furnished impulse for strength in Associated Dry Goods and similar specialties.

LEHIGH Valley repair shops are being run at less cost since introduction of piece work, and production are receiving higher pay than before the strike.

DULUTH, Missabe & Northern for 1922, shows net income of $1,072,000 after taxes and charges, against $2,746,419 in 1921.

CORN Products plants at Edgewater, Argo and Pekin are operating approximately 70 per cent. while Kansas City plant, so far as grinding is concerned, is still shut down.

SAVAGE Arms Corporation's earnings are on the up-grade, each month this year having given a larger return than that preceding.

PRICES ARE STEADY IN COTTON FUTURES

New York, June 13.—Steadiness was noted in the cotton market today with trading in the usual narrow limits for fifteen points. Trading was quiet, representing light short covering, due to reports of unfavorable weather in the belt. July sold at 28.45, up 4 October at 25.15 up 10, and December at 24.55 up 15.

NIGHT IN A KITCHEN

After every one has retired and the house is wrapped in darkness, the creeping and crawling things make their appearance from the dark corners and crevices in many kitchens.

Good-bye, Magic

We Fear You No More

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

The American Society of Magicians held their annual convention and have separated.

Nobody shivered with terror while they were meeting.

Nobody wondered what evil thing would come from that gathering of magicians.

Magic is magic no longer, and THAT'S PROGRESS.

You remember that the great Kepler had to pretend to read the stars and tell the Emperor's fortune in order to hold his favor and get leisure to work out his great laws.

The magicians of today are the scientists that make artificial lightning, talk across the ocean and use friendly microbes to kill the ones that injure us.

Science is modern magic, and only ancient superstition fears it.

Russia's Worries

Ownership and Success Are Not Always Together

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

Russia is disturbed by great strikes, according to news from Berlin. The workers own the factories, but are learning that it is one thing to own a factory and another thing to make it pay.

Peasants that see famine ahead are fighting against confiscating of their grain for shipment abroad. Trotzky is said to plan great army manoeuvres, to overawe the people with the power of the Red army.

Every corner of Europe reports its trouble. The horse that finished last in the Derby race was named "Safety First," which seems highly appropriate to the European conditions of today.

Probe Dry-Dock Claim

Demand of Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins Should Be Studied Carefully by Appointees of Legislature

We earnestly hope that Mr. William F. Williams of the State Public Works, State Treasurer Jackson and Attorney-General Benton will consider very carefully the duty that has been imposed upon them by the Legislature under the law which makes them the arbiters of the justice of the demand of Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins on account of the drydock.

The fact that the courts of our State have held that Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins have no claim indicated that they have no legal right against the Commonwealth. Of course, this does not mean that there cannot exist a just claim against the State, and the Boston American is the last newspaper which would urge the dishonoring of a just claim, whether it be legal or extra-legal.

But the stories and rumors which have surrounded this case for years and the method by which the bill itself was passed in the very last hour of the session after being held in committee for a long time makes a very careful inquiry necessary.

We think we know what such a careful inquiry by disinterested public servants will result in and so we shall be interested to watch the results of the investigation by these three gentlemen.

Faults in Education

President Butterfield of State Agricultural College Points Out Some Defects of Our System

President Butterfield of the Massachusetts Agricultural College delivered the baccalaureate sermon to the class of 1923.

He took his text from Jehovah's instruction to Joshua after the conquest of Canaan: "There remaineth yet very much land to be possessed."

As Rebecca told the Templar who quoted to her the Bible in defence of his irregular proposal, the Bible is like the herb from which good men could extract salutary medicine and villains could extract poison. But President Butterfield has given the sentence not an imperialistic interpretation which its language, at first sight, suggests, but a nobler interpretation that there is still good in the world to be done.

We pass by his attempt to gather from this text authority for the League of Nations. We absolutely disagree with him, but we respect his opinion.

We entirely agree with him on the following:

We have not yet fully democratized education in the sense of actually giving to each person all the education he can take and the right sort for him. We have yet to work out a liberalized occupational course. We have not fully socialized the course of study so that social purpose and social efficiency are gained from it as well as individual keenness. We have fallen far short of adequately developing adult education.

Indeed, he could go further. We have failed even in what we have taught our people—we have failed to teach them to think independently—to teach them to bear in mind that there are nearly always two sides to a question, and that no question can be intelligently answered until due consideration has been given to the other side.

We have taught our history ex cathedra. We have allowed writers of our text books to conduct propaganda, instead of relating the historical facts in good, clear, interesting, narrative form, and keeping them clean of all expressions of opinion—the more subtle, the more unworthy.

We have failed to present on all controverted points of history both sides, and encouraged the student to debate both sides, the teacher eliminating his own personal opinion for the benefit of those rather weak-minded scholars, who, for high marks or some other reason, would instantly adopt the teacher's point of view.

In this way our education has very badly failed to be the great instrument of democracy, and it has left our people contented to read day in and day out, year in and year out, one newspaper devoted to only one side of any question, and on political controversies to hear the public speakers of only one political party during a campaign, and to give no hearing to the other side, not as a duty to the other side, but as a privilege and as a necessity for ourselves.

Thus boys have taken their fathers' politics as blindly as they have taken their fathers' religion, even though the parties have been completely metamorphosed from the time the father adopted his party to the time the boy adopts his party.

This evil practice produces the vicious circle and enables the interests which have the most money and the best organization to present their side of the question and to leave the other side unheard.

PASS A SPOONFUL TO WILLIAM J. BRYAN

By HERBERT KAUFMAN

SIR JOHN RUSSELL counts 48,000,000 distinct organisms in a single spoonful of garden soil. If it is incredible to you that so much life can exist in a pinch of dirt, remember that our own universe is as a microscopic chunk of stardust compared to unrevealed spheres, so vast and distant that the million-mile eye of telescopes haven't yet caught their light.

When we think of such things it does seem that we human microbes take ourselves rather seriously.

But then, the little people coming and going, straining and striving, hoping, struggling and perishing underfoot, are probably just as much concerned over their infinitesimal affairs.

Henri Fabre, devoting the greater part of his fourscore and ten years to the study of a few insects, died convinced that we haven't started to nibble at knowledge.

William Jennings Bryan, mentally riding in Elijah's chariot, while the rest of us are testing sprouting wings, isn't so dissatisfied with his store of information. One intellect still wandering through the Garden of Eden—where Russells, Darwins and Fabres didn't use their wits.

America has made many political bungles, but a wise Providence, at least, has saved us from the supreme folly of letting that troglodyte brain manage the United States.

How Nature Preserves Balances

Mr. Bryan hasn't yet delivered his views on nature's exquisitely calculated scheme for maintaining balances between various species.

Oreton witnesses an extraordinary demonstration of her shrewd methods. Caterpillars appear in such numbers that trains are stalled by migrating pupae, when, lo, and behold, myriads of flies suddenly swarm to the rescue of field and forest, attack the invaders and fill their heads with eggs which will hatch, destroy and consume their carriers.

Flocks of birds, answering a silent call, will later devour the flies. Foxes, ferrets, owls and hawks then prey upon the birds. Lynx, panther, wolf and eagle feed upon them, and the master hunters of the wilds subsequently succumb to trap and weapon.

The important thing for man to learn is what sorts of birds and beasts to leave on the job—at least until science gets the hang of insect tides and pest gases.

Happenings on Various Ant Hills

Ants and bees zealously maintain their social orders. Sir John Russell mentions nothing of other subterranean systems of caste.

But it's quite possible that empires at the end of grass roots have their Lords Northesk and Southesk, too, and likewise become excited when scions of nobility announce their betrothals to a King's granddaughter, or stoop to conquer less exalted hearts.

England is all agog at the future Lord Southesk's engagement to Princess Maud, just when Lord Northesk plays Cophetua and bestows his coronet upon a music hall maid.

The President, already a noble of the Mystic Shrine, becomes a tall cedar of Lebanon. Timbers for Solomon's temple were hewn from Lebanon cedars. Henceforth one flourishes in the White House.

Mr. Harding is a persistent joiner. But nobody cares how many initiations he undergoes, provided he steers clear of World Court rites.

War's Ancient Warren

Civil war breaks loose in Bulgaria. The Balkans are in for it. That warren of treason and intrigue is never happy without a sword in one hand and an enemy in the other.

War's favorite whetstone. Civilization will be lucky if the blood that seeps from yon reeking hills doesn't eventually dye the chalk cliffs of Dover and stain the Steppes.

Russia is determined to have Bessarabia back. Her covetous eye is on Rumania's oil fields, and depend upon it, she will grab for them the moment buffer States fall upon one another.

Wherever there's motor fuel there's destined to be trouble. Liquid gold is the most valuable asset of nations.

"We Are Not the Only Ones"

The United States Geological Survey announces that consumption of crude petroleum has increased 40 per cent. Investment experts immediately jubilate and remind us how well the industry is doing. Statistics issue warning that foolish virgin America won't long be able to fill lamps and drive engines from local wells.

Young men haunting the highroads of opportunity can't do better than concentrate their thoughts on a substitute power for the millions of automobiles and aeroplanes facing early dependence upon overseas deposits.

English companies gleefully boast that we'll pay interest on the British debt at John Bull's gasoline counter. British taxpayers will need several such sources of revenue before the burdens of regardless budgets are off their shoulders.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer has received three billion dollars to date from the sale of leftover factories, munitions, machinery, food and equipment, the disposal of which required a thousand auctioneers and necessitated three hundred and fifty thousand different lists and catalogues.

Private concerns aren't conducted on like hit-and-miss principles. This isn't the only country where public funds are squandered.

When Need Drives, Even Kings Obey

Princess Antoine Murat, lately a grandame in St. Petersburg, opens an eating house at Nice. Noblewomen and several generals of the old regime are members of the kitchen staff. One of the prominent hotels employs a Prince as dancing master, and when off-duty he passes the time of day with an erstwhile court dandy who has invested his jewels and hopes in a garage.

The Governor of Kief's son gratefully accepts the customary tips of a hall porter, and an admiral's wife and the widow of a former banker, respectively, conduct Riviera millinery shops and cake bakeries.

A lesson for nations that don't watch their dams. Waves of revolution strew strange wreckage. The last of the Louis taught French in a Manhattan school. But that didn't teach the Czar anything.

A few characteristic happenings in this spoonful of dirt we call the earth.

GIRLS FROM CHINA TAKE BANKING

BERKELEY, Cal., June 13.—The ancient banking system of China is doomed for a change—but the change in question is for the improvement over the old and present systems.

Two young Chinese maidens, American educated, have taken up the study of "money and banking" at the University of California with the intention of going back to China after completing their course and endeavoring to reform the banking system.

They are pioneers in this field of study. Most Chinese girls, after completing their course of study, return to to the Orient to teach. A few take medical courses and become doctors and nurses. Now a new field is opening to them.

Displaying the Flag

Editor Boston American:

I noticed an article in your paper which stated "J. Philip O'Connell, director of public celebrations for the city of Boston, issued a statement today to all decorators and citizens on the proper manner of displaying the flag in connection with the Masons' convention now being held in Boston."

However, as I passed down Boylston street during lunch hour I saw three American flags on a certain building that were gathered up at one corner, in semi-fan shape.

I wonder if Mr. O'Connell paid any more attention to his statement after issuing it? No doubt other instances of this manner of decoration are manifest in the city.

It certainly seems strange that after the many times that the proper manner of displaying the flag has been called to the attention of the public we find so many cases similar to this.

Dangerous Crossing

Editor Boston American:

While returning home about ten one night recently, in passing through Medfield our machine came near being smashed at the crossing at the above-named depot.

Here is a crossing that was unguarded, with no bell and no light signal. The train whistle blew when right upon us.

We (my husband, I and two friends with our two little children) were riding along carefully. Now, why all this talk about Safety First and giving children extra caution on safety when a thing like this is allowed?

Little Ones In Need

Editor Helping Hand:

Several weeks ago I wrote you in behalf of a poor woman who cannot write. She has two little ones of four months and three years of age. They are in sore need of clothing. The poor little tots cannot even go out into the areaway for fresh air. The mother has never had a baby carriage for them. If some kind mother has clothing that her three or four-year-old girl has outgrown, or her baby boy, any size up to one year, would please send these things, it would be an act of charity indeed. M. C.

We wish we could publish all these worthy appeals as they come in.

Clothes for Boys

Editor Helping Hand:

I would like to find some needy family with two boys, about one and a half and three years old, as I have some clothes.

MRS. H. M. A.

You have been sent the address of Mrs. P. C., who has seven children, including two of about the age you mention, in need of clothes.

Needs Baby Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

My husband left me with a boy of thirteen, a girl eleven and a little boy six, and I am expecting another. I would be so glad if I could get some baby clothes of any kind and clothes and shoes for the others. The oldest boy wears 3½ shoes, the girl 2½ or 3 and the little boy 9½. I would be glad of anything at all I can make over, I don't care what it is. It is hard enough to get something to eat, and I can't get clothes. Perhaps some time when I can work I can help others out who are as badly off as I am. I broke up my home, but I shall never part with my children.

Plea for Children

Editor Helping Hand:

I have two children, a boy ten and a girl six, whom I took to board three years ago. Their father deserted them two years ago, and I have received no board nor clothes since then, and I cannot locate him. I have kept the children, as I could not turn them over to the State for I love them dearly and could not part with them. We are poor ourselves, struggling to make a living on a small farm, and both my husband and myself are past middle age. I would be very grateful for any clothes for them and shoes sizes one and ten.

Light Weight Coat

Editor Helping Hand:

If you would be interested in sending me the name of some mother who could use perhaps a dozen or so bottles of baby food, I would be pleased to send it along. Also I have a light weight top coat that would fit a man who weighs about 135 or takes a size 35 suit. Have a few other things that might be of help to a man of the same build. Also have a large amount of magazines suitable for men and women.

M. E. K.

The Mellen's Food should be very welcome somewhere, and your offer will be held for replies. Also the men's clothing. Many thanks.

Magazines to Give

Editor Helping Hand:

I received the address of P. J. G. that you sent, but as yet have not heard from him, so I think that possibly he has been satisfactorily supplied, so if you have another address of someone that would like magazines, please send it. You are certainly doing a lot of good for the poor people, and I wish I had something else more useful than magazines. Perhaps I will later on.

MRS. G. B. F.

Our last letter from P. J. G., which we cannot publish for want of room, said that he had enough reading matter, tobacco, music, etc., to keep off the chill of loneliness for some time to come. He means, however, to write personally to all who made such generous offers. We have no requests for magazines on file now, and will hold your offer for replies. Thank you.

Offers Baby Carriage

Editor Helping Hand:

I have helped the Helping Hand before, and now I have a nice big English carriage, with automobile top, in first-class condition, that I don't need any more. I would like to give it to some needy family who needs one. Now I wonder if you could help me? I would like to work in the country or at the beach for the Summer, where I could take my two children, three and seven years old. We all need the fresh air, but can't afford a vacation, but I would be willing to work our way.

MRS. H. E. C.

Perhaps there is someone in the vicinity of Woonsocket really in need of a carriage. Many thanks. We have had so many requests for women to help in caring for children or other housework that your request should not go unanswered.

Clothes for Infant

Editor Helping Hand:

I am much interested in the Helping Hand and think it is a very worthy cause. I have a complete set of clothes for an infant up to a year and a half which I think will make at least one prospective mother happy. I also have some baby blankets to go with them.

MRS. C. S.

Fine! You have been sent the address of Mrs. L. C. C., who is expecting a baby any time now, and who is in need of clothing for the little one.
